Henry Ford Went Home
Russia Prepared
Otto Kahn's Advice

—By Arthur Brisbane—

HENRY FORD went back from New York to Detroit last night, cheerful and concentrated as usual, and will have news for the buying public presently. He is one year older than this writer, and looks young enough to be his son, with his thick hair, thin face, and active body.

He was here for business and pleasure, mixed. On Wednesday he had luncheon in a corner at the Ambassador Hotel with Gerard Swope, head of the General Electric Company, to talk about buying some big machinery, new, better kinds of steel, etc.

He says:

"Swope is the best salesman I ever saw."

Yesterday afternoon, Mr. Ford spent considerable time in the New York store of Ginsberg and Levy, who deal in antiques. Mr. Ford, who has great confidence in those partners, was interested to see that both the partners had their daughters working with them in the store.

"Nice, intelligent girls," Mr. Ford said, "and their fathers are honest."

"Read what Cameron said about the six-hour day," Mr. Ford advised.

When he walked out to the elevator of the Ritz Carlton Hotel, having just left Mrs. Ford at the door of his apartment, he said something more important to human happiness than all his new models, all his factories, all his public service.

"I met her fifty years ago this New Year's Eve. If it hadn't been for her, I never should have done anything."

Then he walked back to their apartment.

In Geneva, Mr. Streit discovered, and sent to the New York Times, the interesting news that Russia's strength makes any Japanese attack on Russia entirely improbable.

Mr. Streit says:

"Tokio won't act without positive western help."

The same statement has been made here at intervals for several weeks past, ever since a distinguished Russian official said to this person:

"There is no danger of war between Russia and Japan. Japan waited three years too long and knows it."

Russia did NOT wait. She placed bombing and pursuit planes at Vladivostok, within convenient reach of Tokio and all Japanese industrial centers. And Russia also located a powerful fleet of large modern submarines at Vladivostok, four hundred and fifty miles from Japan's coast, and is strengthening that fleet constantly.

For Japan to start war on Russia would mean to invite nine hundred planes with bombs, poison gas and other things, and a large fleet of submarines from Vladivostok, all bound for Japan.

Even with the suggested "positive western help" to which Mr. Streit refers, it does not seem probable that Japan would invite such a Russian visitation.

The official said:

"Russia knows the location of every industrial centre in Japan and has plans made to wipe out those industrial centres within a few hours of any declaration of

Dog Bites 6 in No. Andover Classroom

12 PERISH AS SHIP FOUNDERS

6 IN SCHOOL ATTACKED BY DOG

North Andover, Dec. 14—Six pupils of the first grade in the Merrimack school, Main street, were bitten by an apparently rabid dog that broke into the classroom shortly before noon today.

Patrolman Richard B. Hilton, who hurried to the scene when the alarm was sounded, was also bitten.

Hayes, Richard, of Bixby avenue.

Tracey, L. B., Jr., of Lincoln street.

Doherty, Stephen, of Second street.

Hullub, Paul, of East Water street.

Young Tracey is the son of the principal, who called Hilton to the scene.

30 IN CLASS

There were 30 of the youngsters in the class room on the ground floor of the school building when the dog burst in. The animal began to snap at them.

Miss Helen Roche, the teacher, managed to calm her charges and had them file out into the corridor in fire drill formation. Then she locked the animal in the room.

When Hilton arrived, the dog had quieted down. Rather than shoot it in the schoolroom, the policeman placed a rope around its neck and started to lead it to the street. Seeing the children in the corridor, the animal became excited once more and leaped at its captor. He was bitten several times before he got it out of the building.

Hilton shot the dog, and the head was taken to the Small Animal Hospital in Lawrence. Dr. Ralph Moulthrop examined it for traces of rabies.

Trace New Victims of Girl Killer

By International News Service

New York, Dec. 14—Additional skeletal remains of 10-year-old Grace Budd, allegedly slain by Albert A. Fish, were found by searchers in the Westchester woods today a short time before Fish was taken to homicide court.

Police already had recovered the skull, to which Fish led them yesterday. Today, other bones of a child were recovered.

But another gruesome find led police to believe that other murders may have been committed in the lonely house.

Under the basement floor of the ramshackle, deserted house, off the sawmill river road, police found a bone about ten inches in length.

The whitened bones of a child's legs, arms, toes, fingers and vertebra were found on a hillside about 15 feet from the spot where Fish had told police he had deposited the hacked and dismembered body of the pretty Budd child.

Dr. Amos O. Squire said he believed the latter bones were those of Grace, but the ten-inch bone found inside the house caused him some doubt.

"It is a bone from a human body," he declared, "but certainly not that of a child."

Making a minute examination of every section of the place, police removed portions of the basement where Fish said he strangled the

Fr. Coughlin Held as Speeder

Detroit, Dec. 14—Father Charles E. Coughlin, noted radio orator of the Shrine of the Little Flower, was in a rush to keep an appointment, and the result was that he not only forgot to take his driver's license with him, but sped 50 miles an hour along Woodward avenue.

Patrolman Peter L. Larion today said he had paced Father Coughlin's car at 50 miles and then halted him.

The "radio priest" is to answer charges of speeding and operating a car without a driver's license Monday.

Baby of Slain Mission Couple Safe in China

Helen Priscilla Stam, three-months-old daughter of missionaries from Holyoke who were slain by Chinese bandits, has been found alive according to an Associated Press report from Tsingteh, China, today.

The baby, whose parents were Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stam, is being taken to mission headquarters at Wuhu.

Wuhu reported that the Rev. Mr. George Birch of Canada, a member of the China inland mission, had the infant and was carrying it to safety. There was no indication as to the health of the child.

While details were lacking, it is believed that Nanking government troops rescued the infant from bandits, who raided Tsingteh, kidnaping and murdering the parents.

MOTHER OF 4 IS SLAIN IN PEABODY

Peabody, Dec. 14—Apparently slain on her way home from a store, the body of Mrs. Florence R. Pierce, 48, of 1 Jacobs street, was found in an alley this afternoon.

In one hand, she clutched a package of butter. A few feet away was a pool of blood. She had been bleeding from the nose, mouth and ears.

FIND WRIST WATCH

Not far away, police found a man's wrist watch, with the chain link bracelet broken.

The body of Mrs. Pierce, mother of two sons and two daughters bore bruises and cuts and her clothing torn and dirt-stained.

Police Chief Edward F. Pierce said he believed the woman had been pushed into the alley by some assailant and when she resisted was beaten to death. She was fully clothed, except for a hat.

Two employes of the Cox Leather Company in Wallis street found the body in the alley, between the Cox and the Pearce Leather Company factories, located less than a mile from her home. Beside the body were the woman's eyeglasses.

Police this afternoon were checking grocery stores to learn where and when she purchased the butter she still clutched in death.

Mrs. Pierce, according to Chief Pierce and her family, has been estranged from her husband, Clayton C. Pierce, for five years.

Lives to Tell Story of River Plunge

HELEN O'LANDERS

Alive, after having been plunged to the bottom of the Charles river in a closed automobile, here is 20-year-old Helen O'Landers of Kinnaird street, Cambridge, safe at home in bed and able to tell a first hand story of the accident in which her sister and a man friend were drowned. "All of a sudden," she says, "everything seemed very still . . . I knew we were on the bottom of the river . . . I pulled a window down and squirmed out."

Girl Tells of Escape From River Bottom

"Suddenly it was very still—and I knew we were on the bottom of the river."

Helen O'Landers, 20, of Cambridge, who escaped death in the Charles river auto tragedy that took the lives of her younger sister and a friend, told a graphic story of her experience today.

She was not told immediately that her sister, Evelyn, was dead.

She was told that Evelyn had been taken to a hospital.

Evelyn's body was recovered from the sunken car by Fred Wallace, Somerville diver, who made four descents into the icy water 30 feet deep.

Evelyn would have celebrated her 17th birthday today. In the crowd of 500 that watched Wallace at work was her father, Louis O'Landers, near collapse.

"The three of us had been out driving for about three hours, Anthony Irrera was driving and

RESCUE BOAT CAPSIZES, HURLS MEN INTO SEA

By Associated Press

New York, Dec. 14—Mackay radio reported receipt of a message from the liner Ascania stating that all survivors of the foundering British steamer Usworth were rescued today in heavy seas in mid-Atlantic.

Apparently 12 lives had been lost in the tragedy. All of them went down when a lifeboat from the Steamer Jean Jadot capsized.

Two of the dead were definitely known to have been of the lifeboat's crew. Of 12 of the crew taken off the Usworth in the capsized boat, only two were rescued.

The Jean Jadot reported that the two were the only survivors they had aboard. The Ascania radioed that there were 18 survivors from the Usworth aboard her.

The Usworth was reported to have had a crew of 30.

MID-OCEAN BATTLE

A terse message received by the Mackay Radio Corporation told the developments in the dramatic fight waged in mid-ocean. It said:

"Steamship Black Gull reports lifeboat from steamship Jean Jadot capsized and two of crew from Jean Jadot lost. Report two men from Usworth picked up."

Earlier the Black Gull, which is 109 miles from the Usworth and traveling full speed to assist in the rescue, had reported the Jean Jadot lifeboat had rescued five of the crew.

BREECH-BUOY FAILS

The Jean Jadot lifeboat was launched on its perilous mission after hours of battling with mountainous seas, and after many attempts to get a life line aboard the Usworth failed.

The master of the stricken vessel had sent out an urgent appeal for lifeboats and the liner Ascania, carrying a large number of passengers, and the Jean Jadot altered her courses and stood by the Usworth.

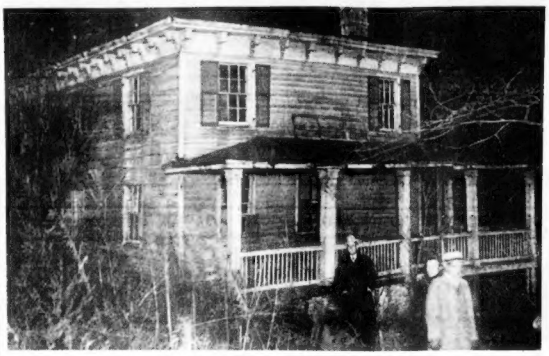
'CONFESSED' SLAYER OF BUDD GIRL LEADS POLICE TO GRAVE

GRACE BUDD

This is little Grace Budd of New York, whose mother, Mrs. Delia Budd, has been keeping a daily vigil for her return since she disappeared six years ago. Now Mrs. Budd needs to watch no more. She knows that Grace will not come home. Albert A. Fish, 63-year-old painter, has confessed he killed the child to satisfy a "blood lust." Mystery—and hope alike—are at an end for Mrs. Budd. (Pictures from International News Photograph Service.)



In the rear of this abandoned house in Westchester County, N. Y., police say they found a child's skull, believed to be that of the long missing Grace Budd, who went on a party when she was 10 years old in 1928—and never came back. Searchers were led to the house above, according to police, by Albert A. Fish, 65, who claimed to have confessed that he killed the little Budd girl to satisfy his "blood lust," then sawed up her body and buried it here. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

ALBERT A. FISH

Whether this man is a maniac—to be confined for life as a victim of a diseased brain—or whether he is a fiendish, but cold-blooded murderer—to be punished in the electric chair—makes small difference to the family of the child he stole and killed. He is Albert A. Fish, 65, a Manhattan painter, allegedly the confessed slayer of 10-year-old Grace Budd.

MRS. ALBERT BUDD

Six sorrowful years have aged this child and woman since little Grace Budd, 10, disappeared in 1928. The little girl, above, is Grace's younger sister. The woman is Grace's mother, Mrs. Albert Budd. They are shown studying newspaper accounts of the nation-wide search which continued for many months, in vain, at the time of the lost child's apparent vanishing into thin air. Now they know the truth. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

Bartlesville, Okla., Dec. 14 (US)—Determined to establish a world's record for a flight into the stratosphere, Wiley Post announces he will make another flight as soon as his ship, the Winnie Mae, could be checked over and new barographs installed.

The U. S. bureau of standards advised Post that he had failed to reach the required height of 48,008.36 feet which would make a new international record.

child, placed her body on a canvas which he brought along for the purpose and dismembered it with a meat cleaver, a butcher knife and a saw he had purchased.

Meanwhile, Dr. Gilbert Daidorf, pathologist, announced that he had found bloodstains on a baseboard in a bedroom on the second floor of the house.

This may have been the room Fish used to bathe the blood from his nude body after he had dissected that of Grace Budd.

Another startling detail was also revealed by police when they recalled that the body of a woman about 20 years old had been found four years ago in the dense woods about a mile from the scene of the finding of the bones believes to be those of the Budd child.

GRILLED ON MISSING BOY

Neighbors told police Fish had often been seen in the company of a woman, and on one occasion the couple had a young boy with them.

This might have some connection with a new grilling to which Fish was submitted.

Fish was questioned about three-year-old Billy Gaffney, who disappeared Feb. 12, 1927, from his Brooklyn home and never has been found. He denied knowing anything about the Gaffney boy excepting what he had read of the case.

Later, closely guarded in a locked police van, Fish, who, police say, confessed the slaying six years ago, was taken to Homicide court.

His arraignment, however, was postponed for one week.

Magistrate Adolph Stern granted the postponement on request that the State wanted to ascertain whether Fish should be tried in New York or Westchester County.

He was ordered to the Tombs, bein without bail.

In her West Side basement home, Grace's mother said:

"No punishment could be bad enough for him."

"I suppose it was my lust for blood," he said. "My conscience feels better now that I have told all."

He killed the child in the deserted house with a meat cleaver, he told police.

BROTHER INTENDED VICTIM

Edward Budd, Grace's older brother, had been the intended victim, he explained, but when he saw what a pretty child Grace was, he changed his plans.

Police said today that only a chance find of an intended victim saved two boys a week prior to the disappearance of the Budd girl.

Detective King said that Fish took two boys to his home, but when one of them came upon the "butcher" instruments secreted in a mattress, the boys became frightened and fled.

Police quoted Fish as having told them that "a minute after I did it, I was sorry."

Mystery of the girl's fate had enlivened police constantly since her disappearance—because of a peculiar quirk in her slayer's makeup which led him to flick raw the nerves of the grieving parents by frequent letters giving revolting details of his butchery of the child.

Efforts to run down the killer, however, had been hampered by the readiness of Grace's mother, wife of a store porter, to identify all suspects brought before her. Two men previously had been indicted by her testimony but were discharged in court.

The Budd kidnaping case occurred in June, 1928, when Edward Budd, Grace's brother, advertised for a job on a farm. A man about 60 years old, who introduced himself as "Frank Howard of Farmingdale" appeared and told Edward he was hired.

He called a couple of times, and the last time explained that his daughter was giving a children's party and asked if he could take little Grace to it.

Grace's mother handed her over to the stranger. She never saw the child again.

Police had one clue. "Frank Howard" had sent Edward Budd a telegram. They checked and found that the original message had been written out by hand.

From that time on letters, undeniably in "Howard's" handwriting, kept coming to the Budd family telling them how he murdered their daughter.

One letter read:

"I have not bothered your daughter before I killed her so that she died innocent.

"I beat her before I killed because a cannibal tribe once discovered that the human flesh is more edible if the victim is excited before death."

Fish was confronted by Grace's father at police headquarters.

"Don't you know me?" asked Budd quietly.

"Yes," said Fish. "You're Mr. Budd."

It was an envelope left in a room in an East Side rooming house that trapped Fisch.

Detective William King, who had worked on the case for six years became hopeful when the postoffice turned over to him a letter to the Budds mailed on November 11 of this year.

PRINTED ADDRESS CLUE

Previous letters had been on unmarked stationery. This one had a printed address in a corner which had been inked out and another under the flap which had been overlooked.

The printed address was "N. Y. P. C. B. A., 627 Lexington avenue."

King went to the address and found there the offices of the New York Private Chauffeurs' Benevolent Association.

The chauffeurs, at King's request, held a special meeting and the members were asked if they had ever taken any of the association's stationery out of the office for private use.

One chauffeur remembered writing letters from his temporary room in East 52nd street and leaving a few envelopes there when he moved out.

Detectives went to the rooming house and found that the room had subsequently been occupied by a "Vincent Burke" who fitted the description of the kidnaper.

Burke would be back, the rooming house people said, because he received at that address monthly a $25 check from his son who was in a CCC camp.

A night and day vigil at the rooming house began. Yesterday afternoon an inoffensive looking elderly man came in and asked for the letter addressed to Vincent Burke.

The police pounced on him. He readily admitted that he was the kidnaper of the Budd child and guided them to the deserted house north of the city on the Saw Mill River road.

He told them he had thrown a tarpaulin containing the dismembered body of the child over a stone wall in the rear.

The police looked. They found a tiny skull.

Police rushed him back to headquarters. There he told his story in stark detail. Hardboiled members of the homicide squad were shaken with horror at Fish's story.

MURDER NEAR—SHE PLAYS

"When we reached the house," he said, "I sent her into the yard to play while I took out the canvas, stretched it on the floor, and laid down the saw, the cleaver and the knife."

He had bought them in a store around the corner from the Budds originally intending to use them on Grace's brother, Edward.

"I could see the child out in the yard, picking wild flowers, never guessing that her death would occur in a few minutes."

He told how he spread the canvas tarpaulin on the floor of an upstairs room, how he took off all his clothes, and then called the child in from her play.

She was terrified at the sight of the naked man and screamed. He seized her by the throat, pushed her down on the canvas, placed his knee on her chest and strangled the life out of her.

After that he picked up the knife and slit her throat, took the meat cleaver, decapitated her and systematically dismembered the body.

He rolled everything up in the tarpaulin, washed the blood off his body and then went home.

RETURNS IN 4 DAYS

He did not go back for four days. He found everything as he had left it. He took the tarpaulin containing all that remained of Grace Budd, walked to a little patch of woods behind the house and tossed it into the brush.

Police found that Fish had been arrested six times and had spent hours behind the bars in New York police stations while they were searching for the kidnaper of Grace Budd.

His recent arrests were for petty larceny and one charge of sending obscenity through the mails. He was discharged in each case, but in 1903 he started a two-year term in Sing Sing for stealing.

Budd Girl Got Weapons That Killed Her

By International News Service

New York, Dec. 14—"Here's fatalism for you," remarkid Captain John G. Sterns, describing to reporters how 65-year-old Albert Fish killed 10-year-old Grace Budd.

"When Fish and the little girl, her hand clasped tightly in his, got off the elevated train at the Sawmill Road and were walking down the steps, Grace stopped abruptly and remarked;

"'Oh, you have forgotten your package.'

"Leaving Fish standing there, she rushed back to the train and retrieved the package.

'STONE' Boy's Plea to SANTA

DYING, HE ASKS MOUTH ORGAN

(Copyright, 1934, Universal Service)

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Dec. 14—With medical science at bay, and death nearing with each tick of the clock, Benny Hendricks, 9-year-old "stone boy," victim of the rare disease, "myositis ossificana," lives today in the hope that Santa Claus will bring him a mouth-organ on Christmas.

The mysterious malady, which turns to granite-like substance, the muscles, skin and joints, has crept from his back to his right arm, which now is as stiff and hard as rock.

Parathyroid injections, which Dr. Alexander Smith of the General Hospital hoped would halt the onrush of the disease, have failed to cause improvement.

The ossification is tending to spread across the boy's chest, halt his breathing and cause death.

Benny, who lives in Larksville, near here, is getting a big kick out of what remains of his life. He has been told that he cannot live to maturity, but he has a boyish faith something will be done to save him.

He attends the Hutchwood School, and, because his legs still have not been attacked, he is able to play some of the games the other boys play.

"I like baseball and football. But best of all I like this mouth-organ."

He exhibited an old harmonica, loaned him by a schoolmate. When it was suggested that "maybe Santa Claus will bring you some nice presents," Benny replied, eyes wide:

"Gee, that would be great!"

Benny was born healthy, one of six children. At two, he was dropped, and some injury to a little-understood gland caused the onset of ossification.

His mother has been convinced doctors cannot help, and Dr. Smith, when specialists offered to see the boy and attempt a diagnosis and cure, refused them permission. Mrs. Hendricks said:

"I'll keep Benny here till he dies."

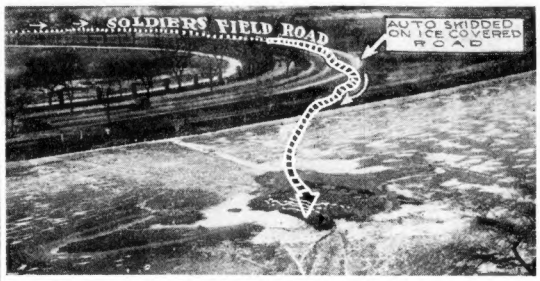
Black and treacherous under its thin ice, as these police searchers probed its depths, the Charles river resisted for many hours efforts which were finally successful today in recovering the body of 17-year-old Evelyn O'Landers of Cambridge, who plunged to her death in a skidding automobile. The body of the man who drove the car had previously been brought to the surface with grappling irons. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)



A curve, a skid, a dizzy swoop across thinning ice—then a plunge into the river depths, with death the climax for two persons! The above photo-diagram shows how 17-year-old Evelyn O'Landers of Cambridge and Anthony Irera, 25, of Waverley, lost their lives as Irera's automobile left Soldiers Field drive, Brighton, and plunged to the bottom of the river after skidding several hundred feet across the ice.

Portland, Me., Dec. 14—Frederick J. Smith, 45, of Nashua, N. H., pleaded guilty in Municipal Court today to a charge of marrying his own daughter.

Probable cause was found and bail set at $10,000. He was held for superior court.

Smith, an army corporal stationed at Fort Williams in nearby Cape Elizabeth, was arrested as a result of a request to Chief of Police Ralph D. Brooks, in which Mrs. Mary Louise Smith of Nashua sought aid in locating her 20-year-old daughter.

The daughter, Ruth T. Smith, was taken by her father to Dover, N. H., in 1927, and the two were married there, Police Inspector Albert M. Thomsen testified today.

Thomsen said Smith and his daughter were parents of a three-year-old child.

Police said Smith told a "fantastic" tale to the effect that he was the exact "double" of Frederick J. Smith, the girl's father, and that he had taken Smith's place in real life after his imaginary "buddy" had been killed during the World War.

WANTS CHILD

Ann Harding in Reno to Seek Custody

By Universal Service.

Hollywood, Dec. 14—Ann Harding, screen star, will make her first court move toward obtaining the exclusive custody of her six-year-old daughter Jane within the next ten days in Reno, it was learned here.

Her long sojourn in Nevada has not been necessary for legal purposes, but has been a health move, Miss Harding's legal counsel, Gurney E. Newlin, reiterated. However, it was stated, the list of affidavits and depositions required for the child custody petition is nearing completion and the actress will remain in Reno until it is filed.

ELIZABETH WILLIAMS HELEN WILLIAMS 'McKERNAN'

Wins Suit

By International News Service

Los Angeles, Dec. 14—A Los Angeles court today had decided that Jack Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey, is not the father of the nine-year-old daughter of Elizabeth Williams.

Miss Williams, formerly a cigar clerk in Dempsey's hotel here, had asked the court to order Kearns to pay her $23,400 in monthly instalments of $150, until the child reaches the age of 21 years.

"For 17 years I lived like a hermit and never went out with another man," Miss Williams told the court. "He is the father of my child and I want him to support her."

Miss Williams sued Kearns under his true name of John L. McKernan.

Bangor, Me., Dec. 14—Liquor sales by the glass over Maine hotel bars may be made after February 9, Artemus Weatherbee, veteran Republican state senator, contended today.

Contrary to the intent of the law-makers, said Weatherbee, the law does not restrict to hotel dining rooms alone hard liquor sale by the glass.

Hot Bouts! Turn Chilly, Boiler Gone

OIL FURNACE IS STOLEN DURING FIGHT SHOW

There were some hot bouts at the Irish-American Athletic Club, 390 Broadway, South Boston, last night, it being amateur night.

But the main bout must have been rather a dull affair, for it was during its progress that persons began to notice that the hall was very chilly.

So one of the officials went into the cellar to attend to the boiler. Imagine his surprise when he found that the club's $480 oil burner had been removed during the exciting preliminaries!

Today the police are on the search for it—and they are keeping their eyes open for a few boys.

Morgue Visit

On Mercy Trip Bares Death of Husband

By Associated Press

New Orleans, Dec. 14—Mrs. Ernest O. Swanner made her first visit to the city morgue, to inquire about the death of an acquaintance's son. As she waited there, a policeman told of an unidentified man, who had fallen under a train near Michaud.

Mrs. Swanner heard the description—and paled. She jumped up.

"Did he have any letters in his pocket?" she asked.

"Yes, he had a letter addressed to—" the policeman consulted notes—"addressed to Ernest O. Swanner."

KING, AT 90, GIVES TO 46 CHURCHES

Theophilus King, millionaire Quincy philanthropist and retired banker, celebrated his annual birthday—his ninetieth—today, by making his annual contribution of $100 to every church in Quincy and to some churches outside of the city and state. Twenty years ago he instituted the practice.

Each of the 46 churches in Quincy receives $100 a year, and five other churches outside the city also receive the same amount.

In addition to his donation to the various churches, he also provided for Christmas donations to other charities including:

Bethany Church, contract account, 3000; Bethany Church, maintenance account, $1000; Quincy Young Men's Christian Association, $1000; Boy Scouts of America, Quincy Council, $200; Family Welfare Society of Quincy, Inc., $200.

Girl Scouts of Quincy, $100; Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, Inc., South Shore branch, $100; Quincy Visiting Nurse Association, Inc., $100; Quincy Women's Christian Temperance Union, $100.

Additional gifts:

Boy Scouts of America, Quincy Council, $100; Quincy Welfare Society of Quincy, Inc., $100; Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League Pond Home, $100; Young Women's Community Club, Quincy, $100.

BEATEN WIFE WINS DIVORCE

George T. Manter was a great hand to help around the house, but it didn't help much when he whacked his wife, Mrs. Frances I. Manter, across the face with a varnish brush.

It broke up the marriage, this being one of a long series of cruelties on Manter's part in the home in Newton Highlands, according to Mrs. Manter's testimony today in Middlesex divorce court.

Mrs. Manter was granted a divorce on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

On another occasion she was out shopping, she said, and when she returned, her husband started to beat her because he claimed she had remained away too long. Police were called on this occasion.

Daniels Pickets With Russians

By International News Service

New York, Dec. 14.—It became a linguistically mixed-up affair today when Edward Daniell, Harvard law graduate and Bostonian who recently served a Welfare Island term for throwing tear gas bombs in the Stock Exchange, joined Russian pickets in front of the Soviet consulate.

Greeted with the Russian equivalent of "Who the hell are you?" Daniells strove to explain in English. But the pickets continued in Russian and protested when he couldn't answer in the same language.

The Russians were protesting executions without trial and terming the Soviet a "one-man" government.

Daniell was proclaiming, via placards, he was a follower of Lincoln and Jefferson.

$25,000 Voted for Flier Ulm's Wife

Canberra, Australia, Dec. 14 (AP)—The House of Representatives today voted a grant of £5,000 ($25,000), to Mrs. Charles T. P. Ulm, whose husband has been missing for ten days on a trans-Pacific flight.

Although Ulm carried £5000 in life insurance, it was said this would be needed to settle his liabilities. The flight was sponsored by the government. The measure was sent to the Senate for action.

Face 'Varnishing' Victim

In the course of a family argument, her husband picked up a dripping varnish brush and slapped her in the face with it, Mrs. Frances I. Manter of Newton Highlands testified today in Middlesex court, East Cambridge. She asked a divorce from George T. Manter, charging cruel-and abusive treatment. Mrs. Manter said her marriage was in 1926 at Berlin, Mass., and that a final separation came last May on the day of the alleged varnish episode. The divorce was awarded. No contest was entered. 'First Lady' Shops Early, Visits Santa, Buys Doll

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 14—The earliest Christmas shopper at a downtown department store today was Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

When doors opened she sought the toy department, chatted with Santa and bought a doll, presumably for one of her girl grandchildren. She has three—Sistie, Sara, and Ruth.

At a toy counter, Santa handed her an elephant.

"No, I don't think I'll have elephants today," she said.

But she looked over the rest of the toys and commented:

"I think my grandchildren would like these toys."

Sistie is the daughter of Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall; Sara is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt; Ruth of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt.

Grandsons, for whom Mrs. Roosevelt has been doing Christmas shopping, are Buzzie Dall, son of Anna; and William Donner Roosevelt, son of Elliott by his first wife.

PRINT CLUE IN FIREBUG HUNT

Worcester, Dec. 14—With a footprint measuring only eight inches as their sole clue, police today were attempting to ferret out a firebug responsible, it is believed, for three fires last night.

One of the fires, set in the kindergarten and first grade rooms of the Winslow street school, was well on its way to blow up the structure when firemen arrived.

Before setting the fires in the school, the incendiary had opened 24 gas cocks in the cooking school, flooding the upper part of the building with the fumes.

So quickly was the fire extinguished it had no opportunity to reach the free gas.

A short time later a fire was discovered half a mile from the school under the rear piazza of a four-story apartment block at 53 Pleasant street.

Considerable damage was done to the piazza, and several families fled to the street, but the fire, which had been started in a pile of rubbish, was extinguished before it ate into the building interior.

This fire had hardly been halted when firemen were called to 12 Austin street, a quarter-mile away, and extinguished a blaze on a wooden rear stairway. Inspectors found that a street lantern had been taken from a nearby excavation and the oil dumped on the stairway.

WOMAN BARED AS JAIL DOPE RING AID

While city of Boston and federal officials, investigating dope-running to inmates of Deer Island House of Correction, were today blaming Long Island intermediaries, the inside story of the narcotic smuggling was disclosed to the Boston Evening American.

A smuggling ring, with its outside contacts in Revere, and a woman lieutenant, who masquerades as a visitor to Deer Island, were named by a man who was a former prisoner at Deer Island.

According to this man, the woman in this case was an associate of a "dope queen" sent to a federal penitentiary about a year ago.

The outside members of the dope smuggling gang have a Revere headquarters in which "supplies" are sent to certain places, particularly prisons and houses of corrections where the ring has representatives, it was disclosed.

WOMAN HIDES CARGO

The woman in the Deer Island case carries the illicit cargo in her stockings. She takes the boat that carries visitors to Deer Island, every chance she gets.

She is careful not to become conspicuous or to ask for a visitor's permit so often as to attract notice of officials.

But, according to the ex-inmate's charges, this woman manages to make trips often enough to make them highly profitable for the dope ring.

As soon as this woman-intermediary arrives at the Deer Island dock, she makes an excuse to use the women's room at the wharf.

DOLLAR "A SHOT"

There, at a previously appointed cache, she picks up a roll of bills that are to pay for the dope.

At the same place she leaves the illicit cargo.

Then, it is said, this woman goes through the motions of making a visit and leaves.

In the meantime, an emissary of the "inside man" at the jail finds some excuse or opportunity to make his way to the cache in the dock room and picks up the smuggled dope.

The cargo is dropped at a spot known as the "hill prison", where the "inside man" and his lieutenants split the heroin or cocaine, or whatever the dope may be, by using flour or sugar for adulterants.

This was the real story of the Deer Island dope smuggling, and it has been going on for at least a year and a half, according to the man who told it.

The ringleaders, he said, are especially keen in getting first offenders, newcomers at the island penitentiary interested.

They are building up "trade" all the time, he pointed out.

This story came on the heels of the expose by Major F. A. Mulcahy, master of Deer Island, who has maintained a constant war on dope runners and addicts since he first took charge.

The major, however, said today that he was inclined to place the blame for dope smuggling on "working parties" who visited the city almshouse and hospitals at Long Island and probably on narcotics back.

Woman Accused of Dope Slip Forgery

A young woman who told police she was Miss Marion Totman, 32, of Crotwford street, Roxbury, was arrested charged with forging the name of a physician to a prescription to obtain dope.

According to police, she presented the allegedly forged slip for narcotics to the clerk in a Blue Hill avenue drug store. The clerk became auspicious and called police. Acting Lieutenant Robert A. Lynch of the Dudley street station said that she confessed to the forgery, but refused to say whether the dope was for herself or for another.

Boy Accidentally Shot by Playmate

Bridgeport, Conn., Dec. 14 (AP)—Racing almost a quarter of a mile to Bridgeport hospital with a bullet in his chest, John Walsh, 15, was said to be in a critical condition today.

The youth was accidentally shot by a playmate, Daniel Iorillo, 15, in Iorillo's home. Lieutenant John Barton said police were satisfied the shooting was accidental.

Man Breaks Ice to Rescue Child

New Rochelle, N. Y., Dec. 13—Acting as his own ice breaker, A. Franklin Van Zeim waded and swam through 40 feet of water here to rescue Nancy Collins,4, who had fallen into a pond on his property. The child was unconscious when brought to land.

MYSTERY MAN NOW HUNTED IN DR. BIGELOW PROBE

Because of the long-drawn out and vain search for the missing Dr. George H. Bigelow, state police were inclined to turn back again today to an original belief that the vanished head of the Massachusetts General Hospital might be dead.

But this time there was a question entering into the theory that Dr. Bigelow might have met death in an unexpected way, not by his own hand while under the influence of an amnesia attack.

What gave rise to this posibility was the reported entry of a "mystery man" into the case. This figure was described as having been with the missing doctor on Wednesday afternoon, December 5, at the State House.

Presence of the doctor and of his allegedly mysterious companion was told by former Captain Charles T. Beaupre, one time head of the uniformed force of the state police.

Ex-Captain Beaupre maintains that he knows the doctor well enough to have been certain that it was he whom he saw with a man about 41 or 45 years.

What authorities cannot understand is that, if this is so, the mysterious man has not come forward to explain the missing doctor's whereabouts.

They can only come to the conclusion that something must have befallen Dr. Bigelow which the shadowy figure in question is unwilling to explain.

Dean Roscoe Pound of Harvard Law School was paid tribute in the Law Review, Boston University Law School publication, in an article by George R. Farnum, former U. S. assistant attorney-general.

2 ALARMS FOR BROOKLINE FIRE

A two-alarm fire did $15,000 damage to a 2½-story frame building at 209 Harvard street, Brookline, early today.

The house was being remodelled, and during the work the owner, Mrs. Elizabeth R. Betteridge, was staying at the home of a friend.

Norman Rose, a lineman connected with Brookline Engine 2 was overcome by smoke, and was treated at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital for smoke inhalation and exposure.

The second alarm was turned in when flames, which started from some undetermined cause in the basement, climbed rapidly through the house and burned through the roof, casting a shower of sparks toward neighboring residences.

Japan, intelligent as well as brave, would direct attention toward things easier than Russia and what could be more inviting than this country?

Our equipment does not include an adequate air fleet or submarine fleet. With our eight or nine undefended billions in gold and our unlimited paper billions, we are in a position like that of rich old Croesus, when Solon said to him:

"If anybody should come having better iron than you, he will be master of all this gold."

If Japan should come with better flying machines than we have, that would be embarrassing for us, although in the end it would be fatal for Japan.

Our New Deal, among other things, ought to include adequate preparation for United States' defense.

Washington discovers that ammunition manufacturers in the big war made as much as forty seven million dollars in a year. One firm made a profit of three hundred and sixty-two per cent in the happy profit days of long ago.

Tue late Otto H. Kahn, able citizen, said to this writer while the stock exchange was closed, in war time:

"Put every dollar in General Motors."

The stock sold then at about $50 a share. With stock distributions, etc., purchasing would have meant a profit of $5000 a share.

This conservative person bought no General Motors. Mr. Kahn said later:

"Brisbane, you wouldn't buy General Motors, when I advised it. Take my advice now and buy yourself some Winchester Arms stock."

That stock was selling for $1500 a share, and to a struggling newspaperman that seemed a high price. None was bought.

The following week it went to $3500 a share. A modest purchase of 1000 shares would have produced a profit of two million dollars, in less than seven days, which is fairly "quick action."

Josephus Daniels, when Secretary of the Navy, had ideas about keeping down war profits. He sent for a maker of torpedoes shot from submarines tubes against the sides of battleships. The manufacturer mentioned a price three times as high as would have yielded a fine profit. Mr. Daniels mentioned a reasonable price. The manufacturer said:

"Sorry, we cannot consider it."

Mr. Daniels replied: "Well, think about it until next Wednesday, then come and see me again. If you still think it can't be done, the United States government will take over your plant on Thursday and show you how to do it."

CIRCUS GOES ON WELFARE IN VERMONT

By Universal Service

Rutland, Vt., Dec. 14—An entire circus—lions, tigers and monkeys, freaks and clowns, ponies and pigeons and performers—went on the welfare list here—strictly from hunger.

The circus, animals and humans, went broke.

The city of Rutland was obliged to feed the circus; 25 humans and 65 animals. There was nothing else to do about it.

The organization—Curtis L. Bockus Circus Shows—opened Monday to a meagre gate. In two days, they grossed $13; hardly the price of a meal for one hungry elephant.

To add to the confusion, the proprietor of the circus, Curtis L. Bockus, was held on a charge brought by the animal trainer, Captain William H. Shultz, who claimed Bockus owed him $800.

Even the animals had legal woe. A Burlington, Vt., newspaper, attached them, charging non-payment for advertising by circus officials. So nobody could leave town, everybody was without funds and suffering from hunger.

Rutland citizens decided something had be be done. They fed the animals and also the humans.

HUNDREDS FLEE FLOOD PERIL

By Associated Press

Los Angeles, Calif., Dec. 14—With a torrential rain falling in the Sierra Madre Mountains, 15 miles north of Los Angeles, county flood control authorities today ordered more than 300 residents of Montrose to evacuate their homes and get to safety at once.

They were warned a wall of water was rushing down Pickens Canyon, the mouth of which is only a short distance from the main streets of Montrose.

Deserted Husband Granted Divorce

While his wife sat silent in the courtroom, George H. DeGroot of Evelyn street, Dorchester, won an uncontested divorce today. He related a story of marital unhappiness which culminated when his wife cleaned out their apartment and left.

DeGroot, appearing before Judge Dillon, testified that he married Myrtle DeGrot in May, 1933.

Fire Is Only Bath Steam

The Medford Fire Department, today, received a telephone call, reporting a fire at the Griffin apartment house on Bradlee road.

Firemen noticed smoke coming out of an upper window and hastened to the top floor. They knocked and a woman asked "Who is it?"

The men replied, "Open the door. It's firemen," and she answered, "I can't. I am in the bathtub, taking a hot bath."

TVA URGES CITY POWER PLANTS

By Associated Press

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 14—The Tennessee valley authority today announced that due to legal actions to prevent purchase of 14 municipal distribution systems from the Alabama Power Co., in North Alabama, three of the cities involved were advised to go ahead with plans to construct their own plants.

"The Tennessee valley authority has spent a whole year endeavoring to protect the investors in the Alabama Power Co., from losses in competition with community plants," the announcement said.

"The likelihood that the Alabama Power Company will convey this property within the option period seems so remote the authority does not feel justified in longer urging the communities to delay their plans."

BENEFIT HELD BY HOUGHTON'S

A dance at Hotel Bradford, given for the benefit of Houghton & Dutton's Mutual Relief Association, was attended by more than 800 persons. Chairman of the dance committee was Daniel Hall, assisted by Harold Allen, president of the association, William Kilcoyne, vice-president, and Anna Goughn, secretary.

General Store Manager Harry H. Ullman and Mrs. Ullman headed the list of guests of honor. Others were Frederick W. Beinecke, treasurer, and Mrs. Beinecke, Charles E. Coyne, publicity director and Mrs. Coyne, Comptroller H. T. Asbell and Mrs. Asbell, and Superintendent Henry E. Baldwin with Mrs. Baldwin.

New Gloria Ruling Reserved by Court

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Appelate Division of the Supreme Court today reserved decision on an application of Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt for a temporary stay to restrain operation of Justice John F. Carew's order awarding principal custody of her ten-year-old daughter, Gloria, to Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.

The stay sought would be in effect only pending the outcome of Mrs. Vanderbilt's appeal from Justice Carew's decision.

Air Engine Breaks Record on Power

East Hartford, Conn., Dec. 14 (INS)—A new nine-cylinder radial air-cooled engine having higher rated horsepower than any other similar aeronautical engine in the world was announced today by the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Company here.

The engine has a rating of 750 horsepower at an altitude of 7000 feet. At sea level it will develop over 1000 horsepower.

State Board Asks Foreclosure Halt

The state board of banking incorporation today voted to ask Attorney-General Warner for an opinion on its power to halt state banks from foreclosing mortgages pending congressional action on further appropriations for the Home Owners Loan Corporation.

State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley declared that with the suspension of government assistance some action should be taken to assist home owners.

6 Norfolk Banks Propose Merger

Merger of six banks into a new banking institution to be known as the Norfolk County Trust Company was proposed for approval today to the state board of bank incorporation.

The banks are the Boulevard Trust Company, Brookline; Stoughton Trust Company, Dedham Trust Company, Canton Trust Company and the National Mt. Wollaston Bank of Quincy.

Three Fishermen Rescued Off Cape

Wellfleet, Dec. 14—After clinging to the mast of their sunken boat, half-frozen, for hours, while the tide rose to lap at their feet, three Orleans scallop fishermen were rescued two miles off shore in Cape Cod bay today.

The men, cousins, Louis, Robert and Eugene Fulcher, were rescued by three Wellfleet brothers, Theodore, Lester and Charles Young.

COLD INCREASES DEMANDS UPON BASKET FUND

The bitter cold mornings of the recent near-zero snap are gone—for a while, at least. But on their heels comes snow, wet and chill, to cover the streets. The rigors of the New England winter have set in.

Consider, for example, the pathetic case of a North End woman—the mother of five, and her husband without work!—from whom the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Editor received a letter today.

For weeks her brood has gone hunger. The children now take a bare table at meal time for granted.

But you can change all that. Think what joy a Christmas basket full of good, substantial food—enough for several days—will bring to this family and to hundreds of others in the same sad predicament.

Twenty-five families were virtually off the basket list today as the result of a letter from Mrs. Joseph R. McCoole, wife of the Norfolk County probate judge. She asked for 25 names so that she might send each of them, $5 from a Christmas fund controlled by her husband.

There was another letter in today's Christmas Basket mail that should interest you, so here it is:

"Enclosed find $1.00, which I am sending in the memory of my dear, departed Mother, to the eighty-year-old widow in Roxbury.

"How can anyone read of this sad case, if they think of their Mother, living or dead, and refrain from sending help, no matter how small? It is beyond my comprehension.

"Would I could do more, but I am in straightened circumstances, having reached the age of sixty-eight."

It is signed simply:—"A Friend in Lowell."

So, knowing that the need is great, won't you add your bit to the fund? Send your little or your much to the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund, 7½ Devonshire street, TODAY.

At 'Brown Derby', Too

KAY HOEVEL EVE FRISK

It will be just as well to be early at the Boston Evening American's Christmas Basket Fund party at the "Brown Derby," 111 Arlington street, Sunday night. Here are two good reasons. They are Kay Hoevel and Eve Frisk, both from the RKO Boston Theater, and they'll be among the many star entertainers lending their services. Late comers may be lost in the rush.

Smith Heads Drive for Clean Movies

Cuba Asks Berlin to Return Machado

Havana, Dec. 14 (AP)—Cuba undertook today to have Germany return Gerardo Machado, former president, for trial on charges of murder and other offenses.

The Cuban legation in Berlin was instructed to ask Machado's arrest and extradition.

STAGE LEADERS RALLY TO AID DERBY SHOW

More entertainment stars volunteered their services today for the needy and unfortunate, and as a result the entertainment card at the big Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund show Sunday night at the Brown Derby, 111 Arlington street, has lengthened out.

In the laughter lineup will be included Lou Ashe, acting as master of ceremonies; Harry Einstein, the "Nick Parkyakakas" of the air; Ranny Weeks and his RKO Gang of Keith stars; Aunt Jemima, Kay Howell, Eve Frisk, Helen Crosby, Josephine Beale, the floor shows from the Mayfair and the Cascades, as well as that from the Brown Derby, and a roomful of vaudeville and legitimate theater players.

It will be a gala show and while you are being entertained you can take satisfaction in the thought that through your attendance you are helping to feed unfortunates at Christmas time through the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund.

No American Fund Solicitors

Information has been received by the Boston Evening American that a man is soliciting funds in the name of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund.

The Boston Evening American employs no solicitors for the Basket Fund nor has it authorized any soliciting.

If any person approaches you for a donation to the fund have him arrested.

Trio Get $10,000 in Bank Holdup

Toledo, O., Dec. 14 (AP)—Three robbers escaped with more than $10,000 today, after holding up two employes of the Woodville, O., State Savings Bank near here.

Two of the robbers had entered the bank through a basement window before employes arrived.

They awaited and forced an employe to open the vault, locked him in and escaped with the money.

8 PARTIES AID BASKET FUND

Rallying to the cause of Santa Claus several organizations will hold shows and parties next week in aid of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund.

On Tuesday night, the Alfred E. Smith Club of South Boston will put on a big vaudeville show at the Municipal Building in South Boston.

There will be two parties on Wednesday night, one in Robert Burns Hall, 53 Berkeley street, South End, and the other at the New Normandie Ballroom, Washington street.

The Robert Burns Hall dancing party is under the management of Arthur "Red" Harrison with music by Joe McCann's Orchestra. At the New Normandie, the Paisley Waisey Club, which already has run one party for the Christmas Basket Fund, will hold a dancing party after a floor show in which many favorites will appear, with Bob Brunton's Orchestra.

Singapore "Falls" in War Maneuver

Singapore, Dec. 14 (AP)—Guns from Singapore's shore fortifications boomed last night as the first phase of extensive land, sea and air maneuvers was carried out.

A flotilla of destroyers "attacked" this huge British harbor, which houses a giant naval base. Results were not announced as the operating units squared away for a week-end climax to the maneuvers.

McMillan Recovering

Rockland, Me., Dec. 14 (AP)—Lieutenant-Commander Donald B. MacMillan today was in "excellent condition" following an appendectomy performed yesterday, Dr. Neil Fogg said.

Minsky All-Star Midnight Show to Help Needy

Jacques Renard, direct from the Cocoanut Grove; Sammy Liner and the entire floor show from the Mayfair; Ranny Weeks and his entertainers from Keiths; George MacKinnon, ace columnist as master of ceremonies, and with all this the Minsky beauties and comedians—that is only a part of the show which will be given at midnight, December 21, for the benefit of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund for the needy poor of Boston.

Shop for the baby—yes, and for the older brother and sister, footwear for every child who needs it, will be the reward. The Minsky Park Burlesque Theater is staging the biggest and best Christmas show ever given. Not a single penny of the gate receipts will be retained by anyone, it all goes for charity through the generosity of Manager Max Michaels and the Minsky organization.

There has never been such a show. It will run until the wee hours. Every act is a headliner, and best of all you will be contributing toward the most worthy of causes, the clothing of the needy children of Boston.

Mothers, Children Plea for Christmas Baskets

Still the appeals pour in. Here are more cases deserving the help of Goodfellows through the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund. Won't YOU see that some of these pathetic requests are answered with a real Christmas dinner?

CASE 46

Will you please help us for Christmas. We are six in the family and we are very poor. Just one of my sisters is working and now she is sick and has to have an operation in her nose. I am nineteen and stay home to care for my invalid mother. She is paralyzed from shocks and she has to be kept very quiet. The other children are too young to help the family. Do you suppose you could send my mother a sweater to keep her warm?

This girl lives in the North End. Any one who wishes to help her may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 46.

CASE 47

Will you please help us. I am in the sixth grade and my mother doesn't know I am writing to you, I want to make her happy. My father has no job for four years now and my mother cries all the time. The furniture man says he will take it back if she doesn't pay and she can't because we haven't any money. We live in an attic and all we get is a four-dollar grocery check.

We had canned beef for Thanksgiving and my mother needs clothes and she hasn't got any stockings or underthings. They are all holes.

My father can't walk on his shoes they are so bent over. I am sick a lot and go to the dispensary in Boston all the time free. They give me my medicine for nothing, too.

I am 11 years old. Thank you. Good Bye Mister and God bless you.

This boy lives in Chelsea. Anyone wishing to help him may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 47.

CASE 48

My husband has been out of work for the last three years and is depending on the welfare and the ERA to help to keep the family together.

I have six children, husband and self makes eight. I am asking for a basket for my children, for I know I cannot give them one on Christmas day. So will you please try and send me one. By doing this it will make it happy on this day for them. I have three girls and three boys. Oldest child is 12 years old. I have been sick off and on for the last two years. I have a small baby one month today and I have no carriage for him, so if there is some reader who has one, I don't care what kind, long as it is one for him. I will take any kind of clothing for this baby. I have a boy who needs a coat. He is 10 years old and hasn't any at all.

I have two beds that are in need of blankets very badly. I have to throw coats over them to keep them warm at night.

This mother lives in Newton. Anyone wishing to help her may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for case No. 48.

TOY IS TICKET AT FUND SHOW TOMORROW

Tomorrow is the big day! The day of the Boston American Toy and Food Show! Promptly at 9:30 in the morning the doors of the Loew's State Theater will be thrown open and at 10 a marvelous program of screen and stage features will begin.

Charity is the keynote of this unusual show. Every bit of food, and it must be either canned or preserved, will be used to augment the Christmas baskets annually distributed to the needy by the Boston Evening American. The toys, whether new or old, will be given to cripples and orphans in institutions here.

Here is a splendid opportunity for you to spread some Christmas cheer. Adults and children alike will be admitted at the same admission price—a toy, be it new or old, and canned or preserved food.

The show itself is a whopper! Chief in interest will be a Mickey Mouse with Minnie in one of their hilarious cartoons; Laurel and Hardy, the screen's leading comics, in one of their best recent two-reelers; the entire group of Our Gang comedy kids in a short subject; a beautiful colortone travel talk, and a Silly Symphony.

Augmenting this elaborate screen show will be Arthur Martel, noted organist, and Mary V. Corbett offering her entire cast of performers in an elaborate Miniature Musical Revue.

Flemington, N. J., Dec. 14—In their efforts to send Bruno Richard Hauptmann to the electric chair for the murder of the Lindbergh baby, the New Jersey authorities will seek to convince the jury that the tight-lipped, 36-year-old carpenter wrote the Lindbergh ransom notes.

This, of course, Hauptmann denies.

But when the trial, which opens here Jan. 2, gets under way the 13 Lindbergh ransom notes and specimens of Hauptmann's penmanship will play an important part in the great legal drama.

The prosecution will place its chief reliance in Albert S. Osborn, noted handwriting expert, in its effort to show that Hauptmann's penmanship and the handwriting on the ransom notes are identical.

CLAIM "CONFESSION"

The defense will produce at least one handwriting expert in an attempt to controvert Osborn's testimony.

Osborn, who has made a minute study of Hauptmann's handwriting, says it bears a strinking similarity to the penmanship on the ransom notes. He gave testimony to this effect before two grand juries and before Supreme Court Justice Ernest E. L. Hammer during the Hauptmann extradition hearing in New York city.

"Absolutely overwhelming" were the words Osborn employed in describing the similarity in the writings.

The prosecution argues that if Hauptmann wrote the ransom notes it means he virtually "confessed" the actual kidnaping by writing in the third note:

"Why did you ignore our letter we left in the room?" (meaning the nursery).

The state also stresses the fact that Baby Lindbergh's sleeping suit had been sent to Dr. John ("Jafsie") Condon, the Lindbergh intermediary, as proof that he was dealing with the kidnapers.

MISPLACED "H"

Osborn gave a detailed explanation of why he is certain the ransom notes were written by the same hand that made out Hauptmann's application for motor vehicle licenses and that also wrote a promissory note of the prisoner's.

For example, there was the misplacing of the letter "h." In one of the applications Hauptmann had written the word "light" l-i-h-g-t. In one of the ransom notes the word "right" appeared r-i-h-g-t.

In another ransom letter the word "the" was written h-t-e.

The letter g in both the known handwriting of Hauptmann and in the ransom letters was similar, according to Osborn. There was an angular Y in both and the figure 2 and the A were alike in various documents he examined.

Osborn noted the use of a peculiar letter which he said he had never seen written by anybody. This was the letter X, made in a fashion much similar to the script double E. He said he found that letter three times in the ransom notes and on searching the motor vehicle applications of Hauptmann he discovered it again whenever the word "Bronx" appeared.

CITES CAPITAL 'D'

He called specific attention to Hauptmann's capital D, as shown in the word "Dodge" on his license applications. He said the distinguishing mark of a D is the rounded right half but Hauptmann's D in "Dodge" was slim and Osborn found the same characteristics in various ransom notes beginning, "Dear Sir."

One point that all the letters had in common was, Osborn asserted, the failure to dot the letter i. Persons who never dot an i are "very, very scarce," he contends.

The defense answer to the handwriting evidences to date consists of a cross examination of Osborn which in no way upset the handwriting expert's testimony and a denial by Hauptmann that he wrote the ransom letters.

Examination of the handwriting of Isidor Fisch, the friend of Hauptmann, now dead, whom Hauptmann claims left the ransom money in his safekeeping without telling him what it was, shows no similarity with the ransom notes. In fact Fisch's penmanship was sharply dissimilar to that in the ransom notes. Friends of Fisch insists he (Fisch) had nothing whatever to do with the crime.

Bruno as He Looks Today

Here is the latest picture of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, taken as he appeared Thursday in court at Flemington, N. J., when his counsel vainly sought a bill of particulars of the charges on which he will be tried in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

BRUNO 'PAPERS' HELD FOR PAY

By Associated Press

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 14—James Mark Fawcett, former chief counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, announced today that he would retain "certain papers and affidavits" in the Lindbergh kidnaping case until a balance of $4,221.75 due him fore legal services and disbursements was paid.

The announcement was made as answer to Edward J. Reilly, present chief counsel for the Hauptmann defense, who has obtained an order for Fawcett to show cause on December 19 as to why he should not be compelled to surrender the papers.

In his statement Fawcett said:

"The record on appeal cost me more than $600 which I have advanced personally and I will not be able to turn it over to him until my bill has been paid.

"I have no lien on any property of the Hauptmanns."

He added, however, that he did have a lien on the evidence and documents that he and his agents had gathered.

Fractured Skull Is Death Cause

Flemington, N. J., Dec. 14 (INS)—"A fracture of the skull, the result of external violence," caused the death of baby Lindbergh, the state of New Jersey contended today.

In response to one question in a bill of particulars demanded by counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, accused of the slaying, and ordered answered by Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, Attorney-General David T. Wilentz revealed for the first time the state's theory of how the baby was slain.

O'Hearn Heads Brookline List

Thirteen of 33 members of the Brookline police department who took the examination for sergeant before the Civil Service Commission on October 27 have passed the test, the commission announced today.

YOUTH OFFERS NEW CLUES TO BOMBERS

Hopes for an early solution of the mysterious bombings of the Tremont and Majestic Theatres, here, and show houses in Lynn and Pawtucket, R. I., rose today when a young motion picture operator went to headquarters for questioning.

Although not implicated, the man was said to know about them. Arriving with Detectives Benjamin Goodman and William Goldston, he went to the room where Deputy Superintendent James R. Claffin is conducting the closed-door probe into Wednesday's explosions.

Federal agents, under Francis H. McKeon of the Department of Justice, were also quietly at work on the case today probing recent sales of nitroglycerine in New England, it was learned.

The government men are interested in a theory that the bombers have left the state to escape arrest —a move that was made a crime when Congress gave federal agents greater power in dealing with the underworld.

Back from New York, where he sought the aid of the famed bomb squad, Captain Stephen J. Flaherty, head of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, went into conference with Deputy Superintendent Claffin.

Oh, These Husbands! What a Heartache!

JUNE KNIGHT

ELIZABETH ALLEN

It took Screen Actress June Knight, above, less than two weeks to find out how a husband can get in your hair. She married Paul Ames, wealthy New York broker, November 30, of this year. Now she's asking a divorce—plus $1200 a month and $5000 "legal expenses." Paul took a man friend along on their honeymoon, she says.

And Elizabeth Allen, above, finds successful wives and—er—not so successful husbands don't mix. She came from England to find herself a hit in Hollywood. And so she is separated and contemplating divorce from William O'Bryan, a mere London booking agent.

3 Movie Romances Crash: June Asks $1200 a Month

By Associated Press

Hollywood, Dec. 14—Three movie romances, one of nearly 20 years duration, another only two weeks old, became just memories today.

Charles Ray, one of the brightest stars of silent pictures, was sued for divorce by Mrs. Clara Grant Ray. She charged desertion, non-support and cruelty. They were married Nov. 15, 1915 and separated Aug. 1, 1932.

Complaining a chaperoned honeymoon did not appeal to her, June Knight, the actress, sued her New York broker husband of two weeks, Paul Ames, for divorce.

Elizabeth Allen, English screen actress who came to Hollywood two years ago, announced she and William O'Bryan, London managerial agent, had separated and probably would be divorced.

Mrs. Ray's suit came as her husband struggled along the comeback trail in the movies. The reputed possessor of a $2,000,000 fortune, Ray has said he lost everything in his efforts to produce big own pictures.

Mrs. Ray alleged her husband frequently has been seen with a young woman in resorts patronized by motion picture people. She mentioned no names.

Miss Knight alleged that soon after her marriage to Ames in Chicago November 30 her husband insisted on having his friend, Murray Stern, continually present. Stern, she stated moved into Ames' Beverly Hills home with them when the couple came to Hollywood from Chicago.

SLAIN PAIR'S CHILD SAFE

Missionaries in isolated villages throughout the southeast were reported to be rushing for safety to Large river and sea ports, where the guns of American and British warships guaranteed them protection.

Troops of General Chiang moved into Tungteh, Anhwei province, within a few hours after Mr. and Mrs. Stam were kidnaped.

Letter Bares Courage of Slain Holyoke Girl

Holyoke, Dec. 14—"On her lips was a sweet, happy smile, while she kept her eyes steadily on the face of the bridegroom, and he, awaiting her at the altar, had eyes for her alone."

Romance in China, marriage in China, the birth of a little baby girl by a Caesarean operation—then death with her missionary husband at the hands of Chinese Communist bandits, who carried off the child.

In the shadow of Betty Scott Stam's tragic fate, a letter, written home by her mother describing the daughter's courage among Chinese terrorists and her new-found happiness in love, stood out today in vivid, pitiable contrast.

The letter was received here by Betty's uncle, Francis Heywood, from her mother, Mrs. C. E. Scott. Mrs. Scott and her husband, natives of Holyoke, have been missionaries in China for many years and the marriage of their daughter was at the parents' home in China in October, 1933.

CITY BESEIGED

The letter reveals Mrs. Stam as a young woman of remarkable courage, not afraid of bandits, traveling with only a small Chinese school boy as companion through bandit-infested regions on the way to the home of her parents for the wedding.

Mrs. Scott wrote:

"Betty did not ask for any summer vacation from her inland station at Fowyang, Anwei, preferring to be at home with us for a longer visit before the wedding. Her mission, the China Inland, granted her permission to leave at the beginning of September.

"Shortly after, we heard the city was beseiged by a bandit army. When regular troops went out to drive them away, they joined hands with the bandits, leaving the city unprotected except by volunteers inside the city, who kept watch on the walls. The gates of the city were closed for a week, thus threatening a scarcity of food.

"Traveling was dangerous, yet our Betty pluckily made that long journey unescorted by any foreigner. She was accompanied by a small Chinese schoolboy, put in her charge for safe transit on his way to school, thus adding to, rather than lessening, her burden of responsibility.

SAVED BY RAIN

"As she was leaving her old station 'for good and all' she was cumbered with 'all her worldly goods' fortunately no furniture—but bedding, dishes, books, clothing, etc.

"For the better part of two days she traveled on a small river boat and in the rain. It is more than possible that the rain was sent as a divine protection because the Chinese (whether bandits or not) hate to move about in the rain."

WEISS KIDNAP IS NEAR SOLUTION

Philadelphia, Dec. 14—Indications arose here today that the mysterious kidnaping of William "Bill" Weiss, big-time gambler and reputed racketeer, is approaching solution as the result of a spectacular raid on an underworld stronghold staged by 50 heavily armed policemen and detectives.

The name of Robert Mais, Philadelphia's Public Enemy No. 1, was linked to a sensational series of developments preceding and following the raid.

Together with Walter Legenza, his partner in crime, Mais escaped arrest, it was revealed, after a furious gun battle with detectives.

Socialists Seized Cheering Leader

Vienna, Dec. 14 (AP)—Ten sympathizers with the suppressed Socialist cause were arrested today as they cheered former Mayor Karl Seitz, recently released from prison, when he appeared in Ringstrasse.

Admiral Near Death

Bremerton, Wash., Dec. 14 (AP) —Rear Admiral Robert S. Coontz, 70, retired, author of a "Navy Second to None" policy under President Harding, was in a critical condition today after a serious heart attack.

WATSON, PHONE PIONEER, DIES

By Associated Press

St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 14—Thomas A. Watson, 80, manufacturer of the first telephone instrument, and first to hear a human voice over the device, that of its inventor, Alexander Graham Bell, died suddenly last night at his winter home here.

Watson, who came here three weeks ago from Boston, where he resided on Beacon street, was a member of the Boston Browning Association, the Boston Historical Society, the Boston Business Men's Art Club and the Society of Electrical Engineers.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Kimball Watson.

Thirsty Town to Ask Ely Aid

Auburn, Dec. 14—More than 50 families—almost 300 persons—in the Woodland Park section of this town today were again without water and planned an appeal to Governor Ely for state aid.

Ever since the shallow mains of the Auburn Water Company froze up, residents of the section have been compelled to resort to wells or to borrow water from other sections of the town or nearby Worcester.

The lack of water is a serious health menace, and several cases of sickness have already been blamed on it. Health officials indicated they were balked in their efforts to remedy the situation.

MACHADO FLEES REICH ARREST

By Associated Press

Hamburg, Germany, Dec. 14—Gerardo Machado, former president of Cuba, repeated his New York disappearance act here today, leaving town a few moments before German secret police called at his hotel.

He was reported to have taken a train to Switzerland.

Advices from Havana said the Cuban government had instructed its legation in Berlin to seek his extradition to Cuba, where he is wanted on murder charges arising from his years as dictator of the island republic.

It was rumored that the secret police had tried to advise him that he had better leave Germany in order to avoid trouble.

DIDN'T REALIZE."

"We had gone slowly the whole evening and we were going slowly at the time of the skid. I didn't realize we were skidding into the river.

"We hit a bump and I thought we had hit a tree and I yelled out to Anthony to watch out. It was the strangest sensation I ever felt.

"Suddenly, everything seemed very still and I realized I had to get out. I knew we were in the river

"I yanked the coat of my sister, but could make no sound. Suddenly, the car was full of water. I new we were on the bottom

"I reached for Evelyn's hand. she was struggling.

SQUIRMED OUT

"I pulled the handle of the window of the rear seat, lowered it and squirmed out. The next thing I knew I was hanging on to a big cake of ice and yelling for help. I felt myself slipping off because my coat was so heavy.

"Then someone yelled, 'grab this board.' My hands were too cold to grab it, but I put both feet around it and hung on until some fellows picked me up in a rowboat."

Police decided to bury the auto when it was located and not attempt to take it from the river until spring.

Crowds who watched Wallace ventured danger many more to the hole. The ice rumbled several times and police finally ordered the crowd ashore.

Evelyn and Anthony Iera, 21 of Maple street Revere, who died after being taken from the submerged machine were two of a total of 10 deaths, six have caused by the accumulation of ice Thursday last night.

Ticket Found After 4 Years

What happened to Mrs. James A. Stewart's railroad ticket for a trip from Worcester to Nashua, N. H. after the conductor had punched it, four years ago, remained a mystery until today when the Boston & Maine Railroad received a letter from Fairbanks, Alaska.

Mrs. Stewart wrote that the ticket which she threw an entire passenger car into commotion four years ago, had been found in the cuff of her coat while she was in Circle Hot Springs, near the Arctic Circle.

She returned the ticket and the former mystery was marked off the books.

MAYBERRY CASE TO BE RETRIED

street, West Roxbury, and Carl M. Kohler of Hazlett street, Roslindale, as the man who had paid them money in cases after "right" verdicts in civil suits had been returned by juries on which they were sitting.

McCann and Kohler were unable to identify with admittedly poor pictures of Donnelly at the first hearing.

Donnelly at the time in New York refused to enter the Massachusetts jurisdiction unless he was guaranteed protection against service of a criminal warrant, charging non support of his wife.

A habeas writ, calling for Donnelly's appearance before Judge Lummus next Monday, when the hearing will be re-opened, has already been issued.

HIRED BRIBERY CHARGE

Attorney Mayberry, in the petition for his disbarment, is charged with hiring Donnelly to bribe jurors in a number of cases where Mayberry appeared as counsel.

Presentation of the case at the new hearing will be conducted by Frederic A. Cralt associate justice of Waltham court, who recently resigned as assistant district attorney of Middlesex county. He will be aided by Attorney Charles C. Cabot.

Mayberry will be defended by Attorney Samuel Hoar, since his original counsel, Attorney John L. Hall, will be engaged in other matters in December.

HALL QUITS DEFENSE

In announcing the change of counsel, Attorney Hall said:

"As counsel for Lowell A. Mayberry in proceedings seeking his disbarment, I shall be unable to be present at the hearings starting before Mr. Justice Lummus December 17, because of other matters to which I have already been irrevocably assigned, and it has therefore been necessary for me, in consultation with Mr. Mayberry, to ask Samuel Hoar, Esquire, to conduct Mr. Mayberry's defense in these proceedings.

"It is impossible to obtain a postponement of the case until such time as I could personally undertake the defense."

Attorney Hoar said:

"After a careful study of the case I am satisfied that Mr. Mayberry is innocent of the charges made against him, and for that reason I have agreed to undertake his defense."

GIRL LINKED IN HIJACK PLOTS

Confession that he was leagued with four men and a girl in the theft of his $30,000 truckload of silks and furs yesterday in Kneeland street was made today, according to police by Barney Banks, 33, of Lawrence, the truck driver.

Banks' declared confession also gave an insight to police, they said, into several other truck cargo thefts. With the arrest of the other five, it is believed that most of the hijackings will be solved, police declared, with some of the drivers or helpers found to be gangsters.

According to Banks' story, as given by police, the gang has been contacting drivers of trucks and making deals with them, under which the driver would take part in a "hookup pay" for a split of the profits.

All four men who participated, he said, have been truck drivers, and through the girl friend of one of them, believed to live in Burlington, the loot is disposed of.

Banks walked into Somerville police headquarters yesterday and reported that he had been kidnaped in his truck and had been thrown out of the truck in Somerville by the four robbers, who then drove away with the $30,000 worth of silks and furs.

DEAN ON STAND IN SPEER CASE

By JOHN H. NOONAN
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Greenfield, Dec. 14. — Dean Thomas E. Elder of Mt. Hermon School and his wife testified today at the inquest into the slaying of Dr. Eliot Speer, headmaster of the school.

Dean Elder announced as the last witness, followed his wife, who had remained in the grand jury room for more than an hour, giving testimony connected with the shotgun murder of the Mt. Hermon headmaster last September.

As the last day of the inquest ended it was disclosed for the first time since the Speer slaying, that Dr Speer's widow has been in terror that her children or herself might be murdered.

His disclosure came with the deposition of Mrs. Charlotte Speer from the Southfield Inn, where she has remained during the two weeks of the inquest hearings. It was learned that state troopers have guarded her night and day.

The story of Mrs Speer's reluctance to return to the scene of the greatest tragedy in her life—the shotgun murder of her 36-year-old husband—was told by a close personal friend. She quoted Mrs Speer:

"I have just as much reason to think that the homicidal maniac who killed Elliott without cause or reason would injure the children, or perhaps myself."

As the inquest moved into its closing hours—and coincidentally on the 14th of the month, exactly three months since the night that Dr Speer was slain—District Attorney Joseph T. Duerfeldt said that Judge Timothy M. Hayes would sit until the state's case was completed.

"Imitation of Life" Wins Him Job to Make Film of "The Magnificent Obsession"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service.)

Los Angeles, Dec. 14. The most critical and difficult movie audience in America, our own Hollywood theater-going public, has kept "Imitation of Life" at Pantages Theater for three weeks. That's a record for this town, where one week or two at the most, suffices for any movie attraction. John Stahl, who directed that record-breaker, has found another story he feels is sure of human interest and [illegible]

German Stars in Musical Film on Fine Arts Screen

By HARRIS MORGAN

The "Cairo Season" is a [illegible] one. Judging by the new and delightful musical romance that came to the screen at the Fine Arts yesterday, with Will Fritsch and Renate Mueller, two of the best known and most popular of German film stars in the leading roles.

Herr Fritsch has gained much notoriety by being engaged to Lillian Harvey, with whom he was starred in the memorable Congress Dances. Miss Harvey's preference [illegible] undoubtedly stood [illegible] man in his newest role as the engaging American youth who gets [illegible] involved in a merry love affair with music on the banks of the Nile. A bit upset by his wealthy widowed mother's remarrying, Toby Blackwell consoles with a young and pretty countess to marry the kids off to her elderly father. But the tables are neatly turned and although he's a bit reluctant as an add-mate, the romance eventuates with [illegible] where it belongs with the youthful pair.

Miss Mueller is entrancing as a singing, and although the dialogue is [illegible] German, the complete English subtitles makes the pleasant story readily understandable.

The program, co-sponsored by the Adult Education Council and includes some interesting and illuminating short subjects from the zoology and fine arts series.

Favorite of Old Stars in "The Clever Screen Comedy Has Fun Aplenty

By ANN AMES

What 60 minutes can mean in a lifetime is set forth in highly entertaining amusing and convincing style in a clever comedy called "One Hour Late," which is one of the screen features on the new program at the Paramount and Fenway. The compact picture is "I Am a Thief," a mystery melodrama, patterned somewhat on the style of "Shanghai Express" and as chockful of suspense as its provocative title implies.

Set in the busy whirl of a New York skyscraper, "One Hour Late" is in its early reels office life as the big town knows it. In the other [illegible] the [illegible] and delightfully dumb stenographer pressed into service to take the big boss's dictation and working up sympathy and not altogether pale real interest by being feminine enough to burst into tears when she makes mistakes. There's the earnest young man who's in love with her, the office cut-ups, the sour and solemn office manager and some assorted characters who make up the cross section of life in the financial district.

Joe Morrison in the youthful role who has ambitions to sing on the radio, which he does well enough for anybody's liking, [illegible] times during the film with "A Little Angel Told Me So," and "Me Without You," two of his best. Helen Twelvetrees is [illegible] once perfectly cast as the girl who can't read her notes. Toby Wing adds some decoration as the girl who eats between meals and wisecracks. Conrad Nagel is the presiding [illegible] as the boss, and Patrick [illegible] is meanderstood wife, and Arline Judge another of the office beauties.

Private Life of Don Juan," Feature at the State

By JOYCE DANA

Douglas Fairbanks, the irrepressible hero of daring and dashing exploits, is surrounded by so many lovely ladies in "The Private Life of Don Juan," screen attraction at Loew's State, that neither he nor the audience can find a dull moment. Alexander Korda has brought brilliant direction to the film, and the result is one of the brightest and merriest comedies that have come our way.

To be sure Mr. Fairbanks himself, taking advantage of the cavalier's waning charms, is not the gay young blade he used to be. But this is the story of a Don Juan who, wearied for a brief respite from the [illegible] exacting demands of Seville's great lover and his chasing at being pressed into service as a lady's courier on [illegible] mission to her more youthful admirer, finds Binnie Barnes may at being proposed to by the middle-aged and homely innkeeper, are consequently not only delightfully humorous, but understandable as well.

His masterful impersonator being killed in a duel Don Juan retires for a month in the country, having had the pleasure of being a bystander at his own funeral, attended by scores of proud Castilian beauties appropriately awathed in mourning. Not until his manly prowess is challenged by a fair young thing whose interest is disappointingly fiscal, does he return to the scene of his many conquests, only to find that no one, save the wife who loved him in spite of his philandering habits, believes that he is really Don Juan.

Of the fair women who adore him as ardently but less abidingly as Merle Oberon, beautiful and tantalizing, is perhaps the most striking. But since the role is that of history's most fascinating lover, there are, of course, countless other charming sweethearts. Benita Hume has that uncanny sense that only the wisest wives can summon, and one wonders that even the most polygamous of husbands could have torn himself from her side. Binnie Barnes as the pert little barmaid who wants a pair of five ducat earrings for her favors, much to the Don's disgust. And Joan Gardner, Athene Seyler, Margaretta Scott and Patricia Hilliard are some of the other not too proud guess who are victims of his charms.

In addition to that Clifford Heatherley, Barry Mackay and Mervale Cooper add to the intrigue and the comedy, which is so smartly paced that once in a while there's the consoling thought that here - something the censors have missed. The London Films have done well by Mr. Fairbanks, and every one of the fair English film stars is a challenge to Hollywood. Costumes and settings are gay and if you'll stretch a point for a bit of fantasy in the old swashbuckling tale, you'll find "The Private Life of Don Juan," a well spiced and altogether entertaining picture.

On the same program at the State is "Alden of the Night," a most exciting drama all about the pitfalls and problems of a young girl in Hollywood. Bruce Cabot and Judith Allen are the leading players, the erstwhile Mrs. Gus Sonnenberg doing her best work to date on the screen. The many thrills end up with gangsters and cops blazing away at each other in a mad dash along the California highways, and it's all paced at a break neck speed.

BORAH, NYE AIM FIRE AT NRA AND G.O.P.

By Universal Service

New York, Dec. 14—The battle lines between Republicans and adherents of the Roosevelt administration, with the NRA, Senator Borah (R) of Idaho and Nye (R) of North Dakota spreading here for G.O.P. reorganization along liberal lines.

They addressed a mass meeting under auspices of the Young Republican Club of New York state.

HIT PRICE-FIXING

Exemption of all small business firms from NRA codes was called for by Senator Borah as an aid to national recovery.

Price fixing by monopolies was denounced by Borah and Nye to be a drag on business for very much below to distribution of purchasing power without which, they said, there can be no national prosperity.

Monopoly never has enjoyed a helpful hand as the New Deal has given it in the Johnson type of NRA, Nye said.

Recent statements by Charles D. Hilles, Republican national committeeman from New York and Henry P. Fletcher, Republican national committeeman, were acclaimed by Borah.

Hilles had warned against the Republican Party trying to change its historic position to radicalism. Fletcher refused to resign, Borah said.

ORGANIZE STATES

"It is evident from the statements of Mr. Hilles and Mr. Fletcher that there is only one thing for those who believed in reorganization to do, and that is to begin to organize in the different counties and states.

"The young Republicans are very generally organized into clubs in the different states. These will serve as the beginning of state-wide organizations.

"I have heard from clubs in some 20 states. It is my judgment that after you organize in the states, you will have to have a national organization."

CHAPTER 25

"Where are our rooms?" Stella demanded.

"Oh, pardon me, do come up. We have three guest rooms. Let me see . . ." Helen fluttered, "there's an extra room in the attic . . ."

"I'll take that over the week-end," Belle said cheerfully. "You can use my room honey."

"Oh, Belle, thanks, darling." Helen gave her a relieved pat.

"Angel!" she murmured.

"How long is your sister staying?" Agnes asked. She saw that Belle was young and slim and boyish and her face darkened.

"Bess just graduated from Hunter last month," Helen said as they all went up the broad green carpeted stairs. She tried to keep the note of pride out of her voice but it crept in in spite of her. "She's going to be with me all Summer until she gets an appointment to teach in September."

"Oh, really," said Stella. "All summer. So you just graduated from Hunter. It that a technical school?"

BLUES FREE COLLEGE

"Oh, really. It's a free college isn't it?"

"Yes, it's the city college.

"Oh!" From Stella's tone one would gather that Hunter College was a reform school for girls.

"My sister has a B. A.," Helen added, "and she's only nineteen. She made college in three years. Isn't she clever?"

"Oh, during" Belle protested "I'm not clever at all!"

When they came down Helen was already arranging cakes and sandwiches on the wicker tea table on the porch.

"Lemonade, mother, or a cocktail?" Helen asked brightly.

"Mama, your blood pressure!" Agnes remonstrated.

"The duce with my blood pressure." Anastasia declared cheerfully. She reached out for the cocktail that Helen rather nervously had

"Helen, I'll thank you not to give or even suggest cocktails to my mother. You really ought to know better."

"Shut up," Anastasia commanded sternly. "If Helen wants to offer me a cocktail and I want it, that's none of your business, see"

Agnes flushed. She drank her cocktail sullenly.

Helen said nothing. She served the others. As she passed the cakes, she caught Belle's look of sympathy and smiled bravely

"Walter, dear, will you have another drink?"

"But I will," Jerry said as Walter refused. He sat down on the wicker settee beside Belle

"Did you say you play tennis?"

"Very badly."

"Ah you must let me discover that for myself. I play rather badly myself although I won two cups last year. You see my opponent played worse."

"That was lucky for you."

It seemed to Helen that she spent the larger part of the week-end in the kitchen.

Each was on a separate diet. Agnes had to watch her weight and so she could eat nothing but lean lamb chops and salads. Stella couldn't eat anything acid and there was Anastasia's blood pressure.

"I'LL ENJOY DIRK"

When the limousine drove away on Monday night, Helen was exhausted.

"Thank heavens, that's over. Now I'll just have Irene and Dirk —Oh, I'll enjoy Dirk; that will be a pleasure—and I'm finished with the Rileys. Well have peace for the rest of the summer."

"Listen, Helen, don't kid yourself. You feed them too well. They'll all be back, over and over, only heaven knows how many times."

"Oh, no they won't. I'm having the Craleys next week and Cea failing. It used to be only week-ends, driving over with Mr. and Mrs. Terrance won't have room. As a matter of fact did you hear me at dinner? I distinctly said we were having guests for the next three weeks."

Belle said grimly. "Don't depend on it, Helen, I'm warning you. I could see by their faces they liked it here and were going to make a hobby of it."

Walter came in and threw himself on the glider.

"Well, that's over," he said cheerfully. "I think I'll spend a day or two at home to recuperate."

"Oh, Walt, swell!"

"We can use up our tennis again in earnest, eh, Belle?"

"Yump." Belle agreed luxurious ly from the depth of her chair "We sure will."

As it turned out, Belle was right One week-end it was Ethel and Eddie; the second, Agnes and Stella just blew in with their husbands for a surprise visit. Anastasia came again; Irene came with Dirk and that week-end Stella and Jerry just drove out for the day

AGNES HAS ACCIDENT

Late in August Agnes fell and wrenched her kneecap and Walter brought her out with him one evening so that she could recuperate on the farm. Her leg had to have sunlight.

"You mustn't bother about me Helen," she stated emphatically. "I don't want to trouble you in the least. I just want to be let alone."

As Helen drove into New Brunswick, Belle said "Well, there goes our happy week. They're progressing."

"I'd be a most perfectly happy!"

Agnes said. "My Lord . . . we do get about. Where are we going next?"

"You do enjoy shopping don't you."

"We'll be right back Agnes and then if you like I'll have Anton carry your chair down to the pool to watch us swim."

"Don't bother about me I'm quite all right I have to catch up with my reading." Agnes frowned over her thick anthology of poetry she was constantly wading through.

"STOP THAT RACKET"

"Please tell Mary not to make such a clatter in the kitchen. Really, Helen she's the noisest domestic I ever heard and when the husband of hers comes in, it's simply impossible I can't concentrate. They just yowl at each other."

"Ah, see if I can stop them." Helen laughed uneasily. "Perhaps you'd rather be outside."

BOSTON AMERICAN

BOSTON, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1925

This Is Life
ROBERT E. ROGERS

I wish I could be sure that the present spirit of Dr. Amor R. Dafoe who saved the lives of the Dionne quintuplets of the Canadian back woods would have some effect on our American methods about doctors. But matters of that sort take a lot of it.

It is interesting to wonder that Dr. Dafoe does not consider the quintuplets his most important case. Back in the dreadful influenza epidemic of 1918 he had just patients the nurse who depended upon him solely. He could not possibly, of course, treat all 1800 by himself and so he engaged the aid of the local priests and ordered his patients to keep their windows open and to drink as much water as they could possibly take aboard. Of the 1800 Dr. Dafoe lost only five.

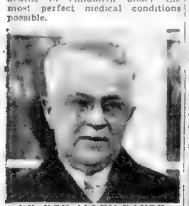
Some few years ago in Canada there was considerable publicity aroused by the success of a country doctor who is said to have successfully cured people with foot troubles by physical manipulation of the feet and shoes. He sat in a chair on the front lawn surrounded by a circle of hundreds of people with foot troubles. By treating them as first he was able at absurdly small fees he achieved a reputation which brought to him from all over the United States patients who had heard of his success and who were willing to take a chance on consulting publicity instead of depending upon official Canadian medical advice.

Robert E. Rogers

Publicity Aplenty

I haven't the slightest idea whether he was an orthodox physician or not, but the publicity he has received for the past two or three years, from such people as Rex Beach, for instance, would seem to show that here at any rate something more respectable and more safe than quackery. At last accounts, our Canadian physician was raking it in.

As against these facts you will perhaps remember the harsh pronouncement of an American medical society which insisted that the maternity hospitals in New York city itself were having together too high a percentage of women's deaths in childbirth under the most perfect medical conditions possible.



DR. ROY ALLEN DAFOE

I happen to belong to the school of thought which is of the opinion that the individual physician, on his own, will probably do a better job of general medical attendance than if he were the salaried servant of either a private clinic or of a hospital under the control of the state. I doubt whether the practice of "panel" doctoring, the socialization of medicine, is going to keep up the general level of individual skill and interest that obtains at present or whether the "Socialist" attitude towards the patient will make for general medical progress.

At present general practice is a losing game. The rural districts of this country are suffering from a severe lack of the kind of doctors most needed away from large cities and central hospitals. Medicine is suffering, it is said, because there are so many areas in this country which lack clinics and specialists. The promising medical student scorns general medical practice but instead, hopes to set himself up either as a "specialist" or as research scholar. Individual physicians no longer dare to carry on alone but must tie together in "clinics" a building full of various experts in surgery and special ailments — that the member of the brotherhood into whose hands falls a new patient will be able to shoot him around the circle, so that every member of the brotherhood of Hippocrates can have a crack at the fresh check book before the candidate can make his secret.

So Refreshing

In the light of this how refreshing is the story of Dr. Dafoe with his elementary apparatus, his exceedingly difficult case, his influenza cures of fresh air and cold water, his $25 fees, his close cooperation with the spiritual arm of society, and the extraordinary modesty with which he contemplates the almost miraculous results of his ingenuity, his commonsense, and his sensible self reliance. It will be a cold day for America when the general practitioner passes the "general" to suit our exclusive medical schools, our tony specialists, and our common needs and ills.

GIRL'S TEN-INCH LOCK CUT; MAN IS HUNTED

While police today are scanning downtown Boston shoppers for the man with the scissors, 10-year-old Margaret Bacon, of 25 Bowdoin street, Dorchester, is bemoaning the loss of her 10-inch brown curl.

While she was walking in the crowd with her mother, Mrs Mary Bacon, an aunt, Miss Beatrice Skinners, of 273 Ocean street Lynn and two sisters, Alice, 13, and Elizabeth, 7, she felt a tug at her long curls.

She reached back and discovered that one of her treasured tresses had been snipped off close to her head and that two others had been cut lower down.

Wore Sweater

She said that the man who was standing directly back of her with a small pair of gleaming scissors in his hand and who plunged quickly into the crowd was wearing a red sweater.

But beyond that brief description, she couldn't help police greatly.

So, special details of plain clothes men have been detailed by police to watch the crowds for any recurrence of the hair-snatching.

What possible use the man could have had for a stray lock of a girl's hair, however pretty it was on her head, police were unable to say.

STRANGER THAN FICTION IS STORY OF ACTUAL DISAPPEARANCES

By WIN BROOKS

Stranger, certainly, and also more interesting and baffling than any work of fiction, is the real life mystery of missing persons.

From Dorothy Arnold, for a modern starting point to Dr. George H. Bigelow, there is an unbroken cycle of cases involving persons of prominence who have vanished as completely as if from the very face of the earth.

There are thousands of such cases, holding the fate of obscure men and women and children, of which the public rarely hears. There are hundreds better known.

The next day they are gone and there is no word from them or of them, ever again.

Where they have gone and why and whether their individual fates are tragic or secretly happy nobody ever knows.

Fascinating Mystery

The prominent hold the headlines and the attention of the public until the hue and cry of search dies away. Then the case is re-stated in a dusty, crowded file of similar unsolved cases and—except by those it touches most intimately—forgotten.

The mystery remains—unfathomable, entrancing, open to every exciting conjecture.

One of the most celebrated disappearance cases in Massachusetts is that involving the unknown fate of Alice Margaret Corbett.

She was the daughter of James H. Corbett, Utica, N. Y., manufacturer.

She vanished on Friday, the 13th day of November, 1925 (a day of ill omen) from the campus of Smith College at Northampton where she had just started her junior year.

A dark-haired, slender, attractive girl of 19, she stepped out of her dormitory room that day with never so much as a [illegible] to her classmates and teachers. She vanished as completely as if [illegible] earth had swallowed her, as it [illegible].

CHAPTER 217

Madge confides to her father her fear that Lee Chow is plotting against her.

AS I REPEATED Lee Chow's threat, for no matter what the Chinese had said in evasion later, I could not construe it as anything else, my father sprang to his feet with an agitation so rare in him that I knew he was most seriously disturbed.

"He dared!" he exclaimed. "He actually dared to threaten you! Oh! The man must be out of his mind! There can be no other explanation."

"I don't know," I said slowly, for Lee Chow's manner had seemed to me cold and lucid.

"But I do know," my father said. "I have known Lee Chow for a very long time, and I have thought him all kinds of a fool, but such a plot as I suspect he is concocting—"

I had it upon my lips to say, "What plot?" but caught the words back just in time. If Lee Chow were concocting any plot, and my father knew of it, his information could have come from only one source—high Grantland. There was no use in questioning him, even if I had cared to humiliate myself by doing so. I took refuge in a blank expression.

EFFECT OF THE POISON?

"Do you know what effect on its prey insanity in that way?" I asked.

"I know nothing at all," my father answered, but I do not think that has anything to do with it. Always he has looked upon him as one of the strangest men I ever have known, but of late he has become more secretive. He opened Mr. Ma's strong box—"

A little shiver ran over me at the memory his words evoked. Again I saw Lee Chow standing before Mr. Ma's open box, and recalled all the mysterious preparations for some unnamed horror which he had directed the rest of us to make. Again I saw him handling with infinite caution the lacquered case with its strong contents, and I heard his voice, shrill and hard, as he directed the rest of us in the daily pursuit until I put from the envelope all trace of fear.

His infinite caution and the meticulous preparations he had insisted on our missing had saved his life.

"You know," my father went on, more in the manner of a school teacher imparting a lesson, "that there are many subtle oriental poisons which affect the brain as well as the body, some of them even causing permanent insanity. I think it prompt measures which Lee Chow devised no doubt averted that last possibility. I sincerely trust so, anyway. But he may very well be suffering from a temporary mental disturbance, which would account for this bizarre interview with you. Do you not think so?"

FEAR OF LEE CHOW

"Yes, I do," I said, trying to keep a dubious note out of my voice, "but I don't mind telling you that, insane or otherwise, I am deathly afraid of him. I feel as though I would not talk to him alone again."

He put up a hand in horrified protest.

"My dear child!" he said. "Do you imagine for one moment that we—I—would permit your being subjected to another interview as this? You will not have to see him alone again."

Again that slurring of the pronoun. Again that conviction, a certainty now, that Grantland was primarily responsible for thus protecting me again Lee Chow's crazed machinations, if crazed they should prove to be.

New Soap with Lanolin Base Helps to Preserve Natural Skin Oils in Winter

By the Beauty Editor

IF YOU ARE IN SEARCH of a pure facial soap that doesn't seem to dry the skin and that doesn't cost very much, but which does its work as thoroughly and efficiently as the best of them, then it is time you got acquainted with a new soap that is meeting with much cold-weather favor.

This soap has lanolin as its base, and lanolin, in case you didn't know, is the one and only fat favored by many leading dermatologists. It is made from purified wool fat—the fat that is closer to the natural skin oil than any other.

All of which may not mean a great deal to you until you are informed that lanolin is so important that it is the main ingredient in many ointments, salves and facial creams. Hence you can readily see that its presence in a soap should be a distinct advantage.

This soap may be used on any type of skin to advantage, but my personal feeling is that dry or normal skins benefit by it most, especially during cold weather. Those of you who really can't feel clean without the assistance of soap every now and then, should become lanolin enthusiasts after the first washing.

When shaved into a pint of water and dissolved over a slow flame, it makes an excellent liquid or jelly for a hair shampoo. Tender, sensitive or dry skins, which require a soap that is free of any ingredient that would rob them of their natural lubrication, will benefit by the use of a lanolin base. Tender skins are so easily irritated that it is most important that they retain as much of their natural oils as is possible.

Another soap that is so bland and mild that it was created only for babies is made of lanolin. It is used widely by baby clinics and baby specialists and will not irritate the most sensitive complexions.

To learn where the lanolin soap or vegetable oil soap are sold in Boston, telephone Liberty 4000 and ask for Juliet Shelby. If you prefer writing for this information send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to The Beauty Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston.

Tar Soap and Newton Pair In Yeast Facial

Questions: I have had pimples and blackheads for years and am desperate to do something to cure them. I have tried many things, but without much success. What can you suggest? I am a school girl of 15.

ANN M., Somerville.

Answer—Your case is very [illegible] of all. You need not be discouraged about your skin. It will clear up in time. In the meanwhile, I know that you are anxious to do all that is possible to help clear it [illegible]. With its aid I have a [illegible] that I believe will help you. [illegible] and [illegible] which have worked wonders in clearing up many cases. You may have [illegible] free of charge by sending a [illegible] and six cents in stamps to the Beauty Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston.

Double Chin Massage

Question—Is there any massage or cream that will roll away a double chin? I am only 29 years old, yet I have a very pronounced double chin. If there is anything you can suggest, I will be very grateful. CLAIRE T., Waltham.

Answer—You can really roll [illegible] spread on a heavy massage cream, one that offers resistance. Pick the flesh up in tiny folds, roll firmly between finger and thumb. That treatment dissolves the fat cells in time. Do it always at night and go to bed wearing a chin pad of gauze dipped in ice cold witch hazel and held on with a strap. Sponge with cold water in the morning.

Week-End Market Offers Food at Reasonable Prices

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB.

Markets are offering all the [illegible] delicties of foods at reasonable prices this week-end. Meat prices, as was predicted months ago, have [illegible] lowered. The reason for this is that [illegible] which is so high that [illegible] lowest in [illegible] years.

It probably will be months yet before the consumer feels the effect of the drouth in the reduced livestock population. Prices for meat this week-end reflect this [illegible] young lambs are selling at 19 cents a pound, pork loin 16 cents a pound, [illegible] 21 cents a pound, [illegible] 25 cents a pound, [illegible] 29 cents a pound, which is [illegible] the drouth [illegible].

And likewise there has been no drop in the fish prices. The cod, haddock and flounder are coming in fresh to the wharfs, and at very reasonable prices. We have clams at 25c a pint and oysters at 23c a pound. Haddock sells for 9c and halibut 25c a pound.

The hearty winter vegetables are very low in price. Parsnips, onions, beets, squash and potatoes are selling for from one to two, to five cents a pound. Made into hearty and nourishing soups or stews, these [illegible] old cod heads of winter. Among the green vegetables, broccoli is around 8c a pound, string beans, 25c a pound, and [illegible] 25c.

This has been an exceptional fine apple year and we find all kinds on the market. Baldwins are 3 pounds for 25c, York Imperial, 6c a pound; McIntosh, 7 to 8c a pound, and the delicious 6c a pound.

The citrus fruits are plentiful and inexpensive. Grapefruit sells at 5-3for each. Lemons 25c a dozen; oranges, ranging in price with the type, sell from 25-35c a dozen. Tangerines add variety and attractiveness to salads, puddings and desserts, and are very reasonably priced at 15c a dozen. Particularly firm strawberries of fine flavor are selling at 25c a pint basket.

Among the dairy products, butter and cheese are selling at low prices in spite of the high price prediction for this Fall. It is very difficult to replace any of these in the daily menu, their food value and vitamin content are of such great benefit to the body.

The following menus are economical:

Tomato Consomme
Celery Olives
Leg of Lamb—Gravy
Rice
Mint Carrots Glace
Creamed Cauliflower
Spiced Apples Sherry Candied Potatoes
Carrot and Cabbage Slaw
Orange Ice Wafers
Steamed Rice Pudding with Hard Sauce

Crown Roast of Pork—Stuffing
Baked Halibut—White Grapes
Baked Potatoes Buttered Beets
Broccoli with Hollandaise
Chocolate Souffle—Sunshine Sauce

Be Happy Though Traveling

Faster trains, planes and boats have simplified travel, but the old problem of packing for the trip is still a complex one. It is a safe bet that most of us don't what we need most we have hind while our bags bulge with unessentials.

Some of the famous women globe trotters of this country, however, have perfected the technique of travel and have worked out actual systems of packing that are described in House Beautiful.

For instance, Mary Lewis, vice president of a New York store, who practically commutes to Europe, travels light by leaving at home all the trick suitcases, fitted bags and gadgets that her friends give her. In her trunk she stows away a duffel bag that can be used as a satchel later. She never forgets cleaning tissue, a gargle, dark glasses and a typewriter and always has a colored ribbon on the loop of her trunk so that she can spot it anywhere.

Gracie Allen, the radio star, identifies her trunk easily because it is painted white. She can also find her personal possessions inside, because she packs certain hard-to-find articles in revealing cellophane envelopes. Nightgowns, underwear, gloves and accessories are stowed away in different colored silk envelopes.

Ruth Page, the dancer, also leaves fancy baggage at home and travels only with fiber suitcases and fiber trunks, and when going on an extended tour she fills them with good clothes that will stand up under climate and hard wear. Any purchases she makes she has sent home directly so that she does not accumulate cargo as she goes.

One-Notrump Double Nets Good Gain

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A team-of-four Duplicate match between two strong teams may easily be won or lost on the basis of seemingly unimportant gains and losses of 20 or 40 points.

In the International match for the Charles M. Schwab trophy, which an American team of which my husband, Ely Culbertson, was captain, won from a British team by 3800 points, the majority of the deals found the boast ticks more or less evenly divided between the two teams and both sides were extremely eager to find opportunities for small gains. Our team owed a good deal of its success to the fact that we consistently doubled low contracts, while the British team seldom employed this effective bidding weapon. The following hand, in which a double of a one-notrump contract by my husband netted us 150 points because at the other table it was allowed to play the same contract undoubled, is a case in point:

North, Dealer.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1NT	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

Mr. Culbertson held the West cards, and, knowing that the British players, Mr. R. Lederer and Mr. H. Jaeger, often opened the bidding with one notrump, not vulnerable, on hands which contained three honor tricks, thought that his hand [illegible] chance to obtain some extra points. Even if one notrump, doubled, were made, the score would equal a game and the loss would not be serious; and the fact that the strength was in one suit greatly divided the incidence that there was little danger of North making any overtrick, so that he would be worth 100 points each. After West had seen fit to double, East, who was Theodore D. Lightner, made a penalty pass with two honor-tricks, because his five-card spade suit offered a source of additional tricks.

The opening lead was the ten of spades from the East hand; West won with the Jack, and cashed his Ace. This established the suit for Mr. Lightner, and the fact that both the King of hearts and the Queen of clubs were in the East hand made it impossible for North to keep him out of the game. Since North was forced to give up a second heart trick to establish dummy's fourth heart, East and West took five spades, two hearts and one club, and their score was 250 points in the plus column.

At the other table I also played [illegible] one notrump; but West [illegible] double, being content to pass and let me play the contract unchallenged. The result in tricks won and lost was exactly the same, but the score to the East-West team at our table was only 100 points—we had an advantage on that single board of 150 points, although the contract and the result were identical.

At the end of the 20 tables was [illegible] Charles Lochridge and John Ray [illegible] Lochridge said his success was due [illegible] attack in the proper hand.

East and West were vulnerable, with East dealer.

HOW THEY BID

The bidding: E., pass; S., one diamond; W., pass; N., two diamonds; E., pass; S., three clubs; W., pass; N., three notrumps; all pass.

East opened the heart six, North capturing with the jack. Lochridge led the diamond ace, went over to dummy with the king, and led a small diamond to drop West's queen.

West took out the spade ace, but Lochridge ran off the rest of the diamonds and three clubs to make his contract, conceding the remainder of the tricks.

Wilkie, Ex-Secret Service Head Dies

Chicago Dec. 14 (INS)—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for John M. Wilkie, 71, former Chief of the United States Secret Service, who died yesterday at his home here. Formerly a banker in London, Wilkie was appointed head of the American secret service in 1898, and served in that capacity 14 years.

Mill Strike Peace Looms

Recommendations of the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation will probably send 800 workers in Stevens Linen Mill, in Webster, back to work. They will be presented to workers on Monday. Chairman Edward Fisher of the board expects they will be adopted.

Elegant and Sprightly—This Gold Lace Set

THIS COLLAR AND CUFF set of gold lace does not glitter—part of its great charm is the "old gold" color. Out of several other gold lace collar and cuff sets sponsored by Anna Sten this was chosen because its deep, ruffled V and slightly draped front yield flattery for every type of figure. For that reason alone, it may be an easy solution of a gift problem!

If you wish for details on the gold lace set, which is from a Boston shop, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

'Asking Parents,' Through Mail

By Mrs. Beeckman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Much valuable information has come to me through your column and I enjoy reading it.

1—Is it all right to "ask the parents" by mail?

2—Would it be correct to give the engagement ring four or six months before the wedding can take place?

3—Can the engagement ring be mailed, or must it be actually "placed" on the finger of the young lady?

L.

1—Yes, if distance makes it impossible for you to talk with the parents of The Girl, then you should write to her parents, telling them all the things you know they will want to know about the man who wants to marry their daughter.

2—Yes.

3—You should ask the young lady, and abide by her choice.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My husband and I have been asked to stand up for a baby baptisms! I would like to know who should hold the baby and who pays for the services?

2. Do we give gifts to the child?

J.

1. The godmother holds the baby in her arms, standing directly in front of the clergyman. And it is the godmother who pronounces the name of the baby, very distinctly, so that the clergyman hears the name correctly. The parents of the baby make all arrangements for the ceremony, and pay all expenses.

2. The godmother and the godfather give gifts to the baby . . . you and your husband may give a gift together, if you prefer. The gift may be a dress or other article of wearing apparel, a silver mug a porringer, a set of knife, fork and spoon, marked with the baby's name or initials. Or you and your husband might start a bank account for your godchild, with a sum as small or large as you wish, and add to it on the baby's future birthday anniversaries and at Christmas. This is a very practical thing to do, for there are so few things to give a baby, and these things are so apt to be duplicated by relatives and friends of the parents. And you can begin the bank account with the sum that you have budgeted for your gift.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.

Give Smart Kitchen Ensemble

By MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9846

This "kitchen ensemble" would make a delightful Christmas present for some member of your family—that is, if you don't decide to keep it yourself after it is finished. The apron, made especially to fit the frock, is cut amply full for protection, and boasts a convenient patch pocket and slenderizing half-belted waistline. The frock has a disarmingly demure ruffle to emphasize its nice square neckline, and cunning puffed sleeves to set off pretty arms. Vertical tucks at the waistline keep it trim, yet provide comfortable fullness in bodice and skirt. Both the apron and the frock are included in one pattern.

Pattern 9846 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 4 3-8 yards 36 inch fabric and 3 8 yard contrasting.

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

Turn to our Winter Fashion Book for page after page of smart winter styles for children and grown-ups, all attractive, all them designed by Marian Martin, our pattern editor. Order your copy today! Price of book fifteen cents but it costs only ten cents when ordered with a pattern. Pattern and book together, Twenty-five cents.

Whether She's Eight or Eighty

(Authentic last-minute fashions from New York—the style center of America.)

By Dorothy Roe

Maybe it's because the gay colors and warm yarns seem to typify the gaiety of the season.

This season the array is more dazzling than ever.

In the first place, there are the new metal-shot sweaters, which glisten like Christmas tree ornaments, and are just as gay. They are safe bets for anybody under the age of eighty, coming in sober colors as well as gaudy ones.

A black slipon sweater in lacey weave, shot with silver or gold, makes a welcome addition on anyone's Christmas stocking.

Styles usually go in for tied necklines and short, full waists, short or long sleeves may be found, at will.

Then there are the twin sweater sets, still riding high. The best ones are English in a soft, angora-like finish, and in deep pastel tones. The tailored slipon sweaters are shown pleated, with small or narrow ruffle necklines. The cardigans are waist-length, collarless and well-tailored.

Correct Apparel for Vacation

YOUR VACATION may take you to the ice rink, tropics or to the snow-capped north, but whichever direction you go, you need appropriate clothes, and Mary Louise, fashion director of Good Manners, [illegible]

[illegible] and cottons for day wear. The new linens are charming and varied—soft or rough—in checks, and stripes as well as in pastel colors and natural or white. They make delightful suits with loose reefer jackets or more tailored coats, and trim skirts of the same or contrasting colors. For evening gowns, prints are featured and organza and crepe de chine are popular materials. If you go North for winter you'll be colorful and comfortable. For most sports wear short woolies or tweed skirts and wool coats. But for skiing wear trousers baggy above the ankles and double sweaters or jackets with sweaters or blouses under woolen vests.

Ruth Ellen Patten to Make Debut

BEING A DEBUTANTE in Washington must be a very thrilling experience especially if one's father is a distinguished Army officer . . . for it is well known that in Army circles rigid rules of formality must be observed to lend a ceremonious air to even the most simple social function . . .

At a large reception at the Sulgrave Club in Washington this evening, Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. George S. Patton of Fort Meyer, Virginia and Hamilton, will present Miss Ruth Ellen Patton . . . many of the nation's dignitaries will pay their respects and the younger contemporaries of the debutante have been invited to stay for dancing into the wee small hours . . . Miss Patton will be gowned in a white picture frock with a rose lame thread woven into the material and Mrs. Patton's gown is fashioned of rose satin . . .

The debutante's cousins, Miss Jean Gordon of Concord and Frederick Ayer, Jr., of Wenham, and Miss Martha Proctor and Miss Elizabeth Harris of Boston, have gone to Washington for this auspicious occasion . . .

Frequent Visitors to North Shore

THE PATTONS HAVE MADE their summer home on the North Shore ever since the impressive military wedding in St. John's Church in Beverly Farms almost a quarter of a century ago when the former Beatrice Ayer became the bride of George S. Patton . . . Their family connections in Boston include the Charles Fanning Ayers, the Frederick Ayers and Mrs. Conrad P. Hatheway.

Mrs. J. K. Waters

In the same little church in Beverly Farms, history repeated itself last summer when their oldest daughter, Miss Beatrice Patton, was married to John Knight Waters at a crossed sabre ceremony just like her parent's . . .

Miss Ruth Patton is a graduate of the Masters School at Dobbs Ferry, New York . . . She has come to Boston for several of the North Shore parties this fall . . .

Eugene G. Grace

Notes: The election of Bethlehem Steel's president, Eugene G. Grace, to the presidency of the American Iron & Steel Institute, promises the financial world some plainly spoken statements regarding the industry. It never has been his policy to deceive himself or his stockholders as to just what sort of an outlook he saw for Bethlehem. Incidentally the traditional year-end lull in the steel industry will probably be of less consequence than is usual. . . . Present indications are that it will be fruitful to the holiday weeks and the average for December operations will be around 70 per cent.

A birdseye view of the 1935 outlook is [illegible] Business Survey Conference, one of [illegible] leave for [illegible] Washington [illegible] with [illegible] the [illegible] are [illegible] cast [illegible] were [illegible] had [illegible] heads [illegible]

Shorts: Tax selling, usually a bugbear to those entertaining bullish ideas at this time of year, is not likely to be in big volume. . . . The restrictions on loss deductions together with the failure of a broad upmove are the causes. . . . We note the suggestion to switch out of Columbia Gas & Electric into American Woolen in an advisory letter today. . . . Some of the more optimistic are saying that the list will only experience short reactions and those long of the right stocks need not worry.

As the market [illegible] Likely looking [illegible] it becomes more [illegible] cult to [illegible] leading industrial [illegible] going a few points [illegible] cent tops and [illegible] at best. The [illegible] hand have done [illegible] harbor a much [illegible] counts and not [illegible] the downside [illegible] repetition we [illegible] rail group as [illegible] any free upmove. . . .

Briefs: Evidences of gradual [illegible] in some bank shares are offset by some rather blunt statements that the group is to be avoided. . . . Strangely enough the bulls and the bears on bank shares derive their arguments from the same starting point . . . Namely loans . . . The bears say interest rates are sliding and show little promise of coming back and earnings will be affected . . . The bulls say the banks are loaded with money and the government will soon withdraw from lending and the banks will do the business to their gain. . . .

Boston's Cinderella Slaps Old Step Mother Mrs. Muir to Crash AAU

By AUSTEN LAKE

IT IS CHEERING TO US on the newspaper side of the prize fight business to note that the Boston Garden has finally kidnaped Jack McAuliffe, British middleweight glove fighter away from the New York Garden.

This is a notable triumph, because until lately the Boston Garden was only a ragga muffin step-child and semi-orphan, which was made very thankful for whatever crusts and rinds that the New York Garden wished to toss it.

It is true that the Boston match-makers were never averse to some laundry of soil to make a boxing card lest the New York Garden become too well fear about it and say, "Oh ho! that's plenty in our pantry."

But last summer when Boston Garden affairs were put on an iron lung and all but a little New York money was purged from its system, Paul Cass, who looks like a male union scale with cash, decided that fistic action, time in the clinches and moments spent on the floor

Austen Lake

Then Father Goose went peking around for big-time glove fighters, buying New York in the open market. And he bagged Jack McAuliffe, who at contract with most horizontal British types of boxers like Fainting Phil Scott, is said to be a perpendicular fighter.

Which call for nine home-town rahs and a Tiger for Father Goose!

A Lady Delegate Trims for Battle

UNWILLING TO DENY MYSELF the legitimate material to fashion the bricks from which columns are built, I have not adopted that safe and comfortable policy to ignore women athletes. True, it costs some sleep and occasional letters, which begin, "Dear, Sir —you bounder."

So I am telling you that Mrs. Ione Muir, the lady delegate of the Boston Swimming Club intends to crash the cloistered sanctity of the New England A. A. A. U. meeting next Monday.

This will send a thrill of horror into the N. E. A. A. A. U. fathers, who hitherto have refused representation to females by hiding in the upper reaches of the B. A. A., where gents run around in a state of undress, showing lengths of bare shank and nude portions of their anatomy.

Thus, in past meetings lady delegates, properly elected by their clubs, have been lassooed by flunkies at the door and shooed away, while the A. A. U. daddies, upstairs, have put through their skullduggeries and backroom legislation under the pretense of looking the whole A. A. U. world in the face and fearing not any female.

Mrs. Muir, who possesses the determination of her sex, has offered to hire a neutral hall for the meeting. Failing this she proposes to crash the sacrosanct portals and inject a little feminine logic in what during this age of chizzelry, have been sessions of masculine bluster.

STRANGE THINGS ARE DONE in Woods Hole, Mass., where they dredge up deep-sea monsters and perform scientific wonders. There Dr. Carl C. Speidel has just photographed a "charley horse" —no kidding.

Now the "charley horse," as all athletes know, is no biological curiosity. It is a muscle bruise, usually in the thighs, and frequent among football, baseball and hockey players. A hard, rock-like lump, it feels like a perpetual cramp.

Dr. Speidel's photocs, magnified 600 times, show the bundles of muscle fibers breaking and disintegrating like wisps of hay at feeding time.

Adams Throws Hat Into the Ring

C. F. ADAMS' BID FOR BABE RUTH to become assistant manager to Bill McKechnie has an ominous sound. Not so much because of Ruth, who I believe is committed to Connie Mack, but because Adams, hitherto contented to play a backstage role, has suddenly assumed an executive attitude.

It is no secret that Judge Fuchs' equity in the Braves, originally a large majority of the stock, has been on soak to Adams and the banks. His financial position was helped none by the losses of 1934, which I hear were $150,000.

Now, with the collapse of his dog-racing project, the Judge, who was liberal and gracious in prosperous times, may feel that the battle is hopeless.

The tide of his affairs has run strongly against him in late years, though Adams has been a patient creditor, just as he, the Judge, has been a conscientious debtor.

I wonder whether the Ruth bid is the telltale that betrays the approaching end.

THE ALL-STAR BASEBALL TOUR of Japan by Babe Ruth, Connie Mack, Lou Gehrig, et al, has been a gigantic circulation getter for the Tokio Yomiuri, daily newspaper. It added 100,000 paid subscribers to the Yamiuri's present 750,000 without costing the paper a cent.

Yamiuri readers had first chance to buy tickets for the ball games. Two new subscribers won a free pass for the enterprising agent. Each member of the American team received an average of $5000 for his pleasant tour.

The players were satisfied, the paper was delighted, and the Japanese people were charmed, enchanted and ravished. What could be sweeter?

25 EVENTS ON ICE FROLIC SLATE

By Bill Connell

Skatin' fans by the thousands will parade to the Boston Arena tomorrow evening for the annual gala Skater's Frolic, under the auspices of the Olympic Skating Club.

Speed, fancy and trick and exhibition events, a thrilling ice hockey game, the crowning of the Frolic queen and 25 other features will be on the 25 events on the program.

WHERE TO GET TICKETS

The popular price ticket sale assures a record attendance. General admission tickets are 40 cents, for reserved seats. Reserved seats, at 75 cents and one dollar also are available.

Tickets are on sale today at the Boston Arena box office and at the headquarters of the Christmas Basket Fund at 294 Dorchester Street, South Boston, and Street, Boston.

The speed skating races have drawn entries list of more than 50 of the fastest skaters in Rhode Island and Greater Boston. Miss Helen Dawson, of Providence, New England junior women's speed skating queen, heads the large group of Rhode Island skaters in the Frolic.

Miss Ruth Hancock of Providence, a universal skating prodigy, will give an exhibition two-lap race.

Fancy skaters in the Frolic will present pair and solo skating exhibitions.

Roger Turner, U. S. champion, skating with Maribel Vinson, of Lynn, former U. S. champion, will be one of the features of the fancy skating. Miss Vinson, Joan Tozzer, Miss Dot Tozzer, Hall and M. Dow Boston, will be the local skaters on the bill.

Quadrille and 3-lap competition goes with the award the beautiful silver trophy donated by Scott Farnum, 36 Winter street, Boston.

Costume competitions for men and women will be billed, with shoe skate combinations for the lucky winners. The shoe skates have been donated by the South End Hardware Co., 1005 Washington street, and 130 Friend street, Boston.

The crowd was satisfied. Peace was restored, and the game went [illegible]

In the days that followed many sports writers scourged [illegible] silver-haired old judge for [illegible] which gave [illegible] as [illegible] troit motorcade [illegible] to [illegible] the seen.

O'MAHONEY SEES GEORGE, MACALUSO TANGLE

George's Challenger in Heavy Workout at (Training) Table

Len Macaluso, the former Colgate gridiron ace, realizes that it takes brawn and muscle to continue in this wrestling business. Here is Len, who meets Don George at the Garden tonight for the wrestling championship, with just a snack of food in front of him seeking that all essential brawn and muscle. It took only as long as it would take the average one to gurgle Christopher Theosopholes Throckmorton as it did for Len to erase this repast, prepared by mine good host Warmuth. (Staff Photo.)

By Ringside

Daniel O'Mahoney, Ireland's greatest athlete, will be down close to the ring when Ed Don George defends his title as world heavyweight wrestling champion against Len Macaluso, former Colgate star at the Garden tonight under the direction of Paul Bowser.

O'Mahoney gained international fame a week ago Wednesday in London when he held Strangler Lewis to a draw in a sensational match.

The 21-year-old Irish heavyweight is an all-round star. He first attracted attention when he defeated the famous Dr. Patrick O'Callaghan at tossing the 56-pound weight.

O'Mahoney is here to talk with Paul Bowser, who has offered to guarantee him $100,000 for six matches. He is eager to get a line on George and Macaluso as he may later be called upon to meet the winner.

He had George on the ropes and was getting ready to spring for the winning fall. Len went crashing through the air. George stumbled out of his way, and Macaluso went crashing to the floor of the Garden.

The injury he received in the fall cost him the title.

The preliminary bouts tonight are attractive from top to bottom with the belligerent Bull Martin due for about all he can handle in the semifinal against Everett Marshall, the rugged Oklahoma cowboy.

The first bout will enter the ring at 8:15, while the main event starts at about 10 o'clock.

For the day's best bet, the writer is going to string along with the B. B. Stable's Foxland Hall in the third number.

CANDESCENT, MERRY CAROLINE, GALLIC

FIRST RACE—Purse $500, claiming, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs.

5	Candescent	110	Arcaro 3-1
8	Merry Caroline	107	Fernandez 20-1
7	Gallic	115	Litzenberger 6-1
2	Aileen C.	112	Critchfield 8-1
12	Pe'Vaiera	115	Pasquina 8-1
14	Impromptu	113	Beasley 6-1
16	Smooth Crook	115	Horn 6-1
15	Squeeze Out	105	Lynch 10-1
4	Big Red	115	Corbett 8-1
1	Free	116	Dupre 10-1
9	Uncovered	115	Corbett 6-1
11	Dark War	107	Dupre 10-1
13	Dancing Boy	115	Schaeffer 10-1
10	Knights Hope	113	Fernandez 15-1
3	Samus	115	Hainsworth 20-1
7	Gadaround	110	Peden 20-1
17	Doeskin	105	Rainey 20-1
18	Ukraine	112	Maiear 20-1

CANDESCENT gets top figures on the strength of those good Maryland efforts. MERRY CAROLINE is held in high regard by the clocker, and has a fair Western rating. GALLIC has worked well enough, but the distance may be a bit too short for her.

FIRST NOTE, REFITTING, EARL PORTER

12	First Note	107	Wright 4-1
4	Refitting	107	Lynch 4-1
5	Earl Porter	110	Landolt 8-1
17	Flight Of Gold	110	J. Renick 4-1
14	Sir Herbert Barker	120	Post 4-1
8	Little Argo	110	R. Watson 6-1
1	Ottawa	110	Arcaro 8-1
13	Gift Contour	107	Litz 15-1
15	Doris Lady	107	Lindburg 15-1
9	Valise	110	Corbett 6-1
2	Ahmet	120	Malley 20-1
3	Bottle	120	Maiear 20-1
6	Gingery	110	F. Smith 10-1
7	Protagonist	120	Hern 15-1
10	Johnny M.	120	Hainsworth 15-1
18	Gladess	107	Manifold 20-1
16	Gamalist	110	Dupre 20-1

This is a wide open affair. FIRST NOTE is from the Mrs. Hay Whitney stable and is reported ready. Last out at Laurel she turned in a sparkling race to finish fourth behind some fleet maidens. EARL PORTER can really run as may be attested by the work tab.

FOXLAND HALL, BLACK WATCH, JUST AMERICAN

THIRD RACE—Purse $500, claiming, three-year-olds and up, one mile.

7	Foxl'nd Hall	x108	Lynch 3-1
9	Blackwatch	x108	Dupre 8-1
1	Just Amer'n	110	J. Smith 8-1
6	Chasonet	113	Fernandez 6-1
13	Blaxen	x102	Dupre 6-1
15	Flying Dere	x105	G. Watson 10-1
11	Boocap	x105	Bohn 10-1
10	Sleepy Joe	110	Hainsworth 10-1
8	Pernickety	110	Peden 10-1
2	Donate	x106	Fernandez 10-1
5	Peace Treaty	107	Hardy 20-1
14	Hail Mary	113	Beasley 20-1
12	Trofford	113	Hainsworth 20-1
3	Meeting Place	113	Landolt 20-1
4	Phara	110	L. Renick 20-1

FOXLAND HALL comes up to this as fit as hands can make him. The son of Hourless has drubbed better ones in the past. Contention, if any, will be furnished by BLACK WATCH. The later has been burning up the track in morning trials. JUST AMERICAN is from out of the west and is reported to be a right fast "hide."

JESSIE D. M., CHEKA, MAE SKILLING

12	Jessie D. M.	109	Stout 6-1
6	Cheka	112	Hunter 6-1
11	Mae Skilling	109	Manifold 8-1
10	Dancing Cloud	109	Peden 6-1
1	Epaulet	108	S. Renick 10-1
8	Knithassam	109	Bonthy 8-1
5	Minna	112	Wright 8-1
2	Paradisical	109	Pasquina 15-1
7	Canterboy	115	Lynch 4-1
4	Sweet Melody	109	Dupre 20-1
16	Ves Eight	108	Hardy 20-1
3	Beaver Dam	112	Arcaro 20-1

This is another hard nut to crack. JESSIE D. M. gets the top figures, but she is a long ways from being a standout. CHEKA, a winner of four or five straight races last spring, will be all dangerous if ready. MAE SKILLING'S morning trials have been little short of sensational and she may upset the dope.

SABULA, JESTING, NOAH'S PRIDE

FIFTH RACE—Purse $1000, all ages, Coral Gables Handicap, one mile.

1	Sabula	110	Litzenberger 2-1
4	Jesting	110	Fallon 3-1
3	Noah's Pride	110	Barton 3-1
5	Sand Wagon	110	Arcaro 3-1
7	Haggerson	107	Merritt 8-1

Four Bears Were Just Another Bedtime Story for A's Ice Forward

Harry Oliver, right winger on the Americans, heard all about three bad bears, so that when he was beset by four he regarded them as just another bed-time story. The Bruin back line and one of the forwards failed to stop Oliver from breaking through, and in this picture the American marksman is seen jamming the rubber past the sprawling form of Goalie Tiny Thompson. The A's won the game, 4 to 3. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

5	Legionary	102	Dupre 10-1
	AC. J. Silf entry.

SABULA turned a mile in 1:41 with her mouth wide open for her final. The dope shows that she has class enough to handle a field of this sort. JESTING will relish the hard footing and should be on the front end as far as he goes. NOAH'S PRIDE, a Texas winner, for the remainder of the spoils.

JAMISON, WISE ADVOCATE, JESTER B.

3	Jamison	108	Dupre 4-1
1	Wise Advocate	113	Arcaro 4-1
4	Jester B.	110	Hardy 4-1
2	Vested Power	113	Haines 10-1
7	Brass Monkey	113	Mitchell 8-1
6	x-Triangular	105	Lynch 8-1
5	Charterboy	110	Litz 10-1
8	Taunton	110	Wright 8-1

JAMISON'S Bowie efforts may be tossed into discard. He didn't like that track. His best races have always been over a "cardboard" track of this sort. WISE ADVOCATE shapes up slightly better than JESTER B. in my figures. The latter is not out of it by any means.

RESURRECTION, OUTBOUND, TUFFY G.

SEVENTH RACE—Purse $500, claiming, three-year-olds and up, one and one-eighth miles.

2	Resurrection	x109	Lynch 2-1
7	Outbound	114	Horn 3-1
4	Tuffy G.	114	Haines 4-1
5	Tireless	107	Beasley 10-1
1	Transbird	114	Porter 10-1
9	Pardenope	110	Arcaro 10-1
8	Yellow Metal	x106	C. W. Smith 10-1
6	Marcella R.	107	Watson 15-1
3	Barkentine	x102	Lindberg 15-1
10	Candle Fly	107	Hunter 20-1

RESURRECTION strikes me as the class of this number. A duplicate of that last Bowie victory is all that is needed in order to insure brackets. OUTBOUND, a double winner at Bowie, is strictly the one to fear. TUFFY G. figures next best.

Northwestern to Release Hanley

By Associated Press

Chicago, Dec. 14 (AP)—Richard E. (Dick) Hanley, who coached Northwestern to shares of the 1930 and 1931 Western Conference football championship, has been given an opportunity to resign, it was reliably reported today.

He has not made up his mind to do so, but it is considered likely that the faculty athletic committee of the university at a meeting today will not recommend that another contract be offered him.

Hanley has been mentioned, among others, as a possibility to succeed Eddie Casey at Harvard.

Peres to Open Tomorrow

The Pere Marquette basketball five opens its season at the South Boston High school gym tomorrow evening. St. Thomas's hoopsters, entrants in the Greater Boston Amateur League, furnish the opposition.

Brown Opens in Game With Tech

Providence, Dec. 14—Brown's hockey team will open its current season here tonight against the Massachusetts Institute of Technology six on the Arena ice.

Tech's pucksters, coached by George Owen, the former Boston Bruin captain, are expected to give the local team a rugged battle.

RANDY COMES BACK

HARD LUCK B. C. BOY ABLE TO PLAY HOCKEY

By Walter Kiley

Randy Wise is happy today. He is by long odds the happiest man on University Heights. He is thrilled to the very core of his being, and all because one of his boyhood ambitions may soon be realized.

Four years ago, the West Roxbury athlete was instrumental in carrying the Maroon and Gold standard of Boston College high to the forefront of schoolboy ranks.

He was a fine center on Art McManus' football team, a catcher of note on the diamond and a fast skating forward on the sextet.

In his dreams he visioned the years to come when he would carry on at Boston College, earning the plaudits of the crowds on Joe McKenney's eleven, on Frank McCrehan's nine and on Snooks Kelley's sextet.

He was sincerely anxious to follow in the footsteps of the idols of the Eagles who taen loomed large to this hero-worshipping schoolboy.

Came his freshman year, and all went well until the annual feature football game with Holy Cross.

Randy kicked off for the Eaglets He raced down the field to be in on the tackle. Somewhere, somehow, something happened. To this day he doesn't know what. All went black. He was carried off the field.

The doctors looked for and discovered a concussion.

Back he came for freshman hockey. All was going well. Randy loomed as a fixture and a standout. This time a crack on the head with a hockey stick and again darkness. Days in bed followed.

Months of rest until the next football season and again he is a candidate for the varsity eleven.

Tony Comerford's Loyola College opened the season at University Heights. Randy was playing center. Again a crack on the head and again unconscious. Randy's last hope of varsity competition was over.

It was just about this time that Ernie Schaaf died. And the medical men diagnosed Wise's injury as similar in nature and forbade him ever again to take part in games of bodily contact.

So for the past two years he has been acting as assistant freshman football coach to Bill Boehner, who peculiarly enough was afflicted in much similar fashion.

He won't play football, his days of catching is over, but one final chance to clash on the ice coated arena of varsity competition and Randy will rest content. At least part of his dreams will have come true.

WILSON PICKS GLORITONE AS DIXIE BEST

By DAVE WILSON
(Selections Made for Fast Track)

BEST BET—GLORITONE

FIRST RACE
JUSTA TEACHER, CLIFTON AGNES, QUICK

JUSTA TEACHER has disappointed, but the horse can do better and fits in my rating as the winner of this opening heat. CLIFTON AGNES will supply the contention and QUICK will cop whatever is left of the purse.

SECOND RACE
TULEYRIES WAND, SCHLEY B. WOOD GOD

TULEYRIES WAND, a pretty consistent kind, was scratched on the Friday program and looks to be well placed in this spot. SCHLEY B may upset the dope and looks like the one to fear. WOOD GOD can be dangerous on some of his best races and looks to have the show portion.

THIRD RACE
HAIR TRIGGER, WISE COUNT, WHITE FLYER

HAIR TRIGGER has rounded into shape and has won his last two races. In his present form he should be able to stretch his string of victories. WISE COUNT has a burst of speed and probably will offer the contention. WHITE FLYER can get the third spot under proper ruling.

FOURTH RACE
CHRISTMAS ENTRY, SEA FINN, STELLAR

The CHRISTMAS ENTRY looks to have this race practically at their mercy. It is probable this pair may run one-two. If there is any serious opposition it will come from SEA FINN and STELLAR in that order.

FIFTH RACE
GLORITONE, CAMPAGNA, ACCOLADE

This looks like the best race on the program but GLORITONE packs too much class and should be returned the winner. It is my best bet of the afternoon. CAMPAGNA, a Maryland winner should be the runnerup while ACCOLADE, a better than ordinary kind, will give a good account of himself and should take the show portion.

SIXTH RACE
HORATIO HUGH, PERGOLA, HARD PLAY

HORATIO HUGH, on his racing at this plant, is my choice in this heat. PERGOLA and HARD PLAY should divide the rest of the spoils in that order.

SEVENTH RACE
MISS CATALAN, TRISTRAP, ROYAL LASSIE

MISS CATALAN finds this track to her liking and has proven that she can negotiate this course. She looks like a standout in this field. TRISTRAP has shown flashes which entitles him to contention honors. ROYAL LASSIE for the rest.

McCoy to Use Second Team at Clark

Al McCoy, Northeastern basketball mentor, intends to use his second team for the most part of the game tonight against Clark University at Worcester South High School.

The first team—the same that beat Brown last week—will line up as follows: Captain Heath Morse and Hy Burstein, forwards; Mert Rice, center; Allan Melville and Ted Bialkowski guards.

McCoy's second five will have Chick Whitney at the pivot; George Harris and John Barone at the wings; and Jay Hart and Ed Quinland at the defense.

GERARD NAMED BOUCHER COACH

By Associated Press

Ottawa, Dec. 14—The Ottawa directors of the St. Louis Club of the National Hockey League today issued a statement explaining that the appointment of George Boucher as successor to Coach Eddie Gerard was made at the latter's request.

Gerard, according to the statement, suggested that Boucher might be able to give the team a scoring punch. They said Gerard was given a leave of absence only, that he had not resigned, and that the terms of his contract would be fulfilled.

The Eagles had won only two of 13 games when Gerard turned the reins over to Boucher. They also lost their first game under the new coach.

KOENIG, STOUT JOIN GIANTS

By International News Service

New York, Dec. 14—Bill Terry, manager of the New York Giants, said today he was all set for another pennant drive with the completion of his deal with the Cincinnati Reds which saw Billy Meyers, rookie infielder from Columbus, go to the Reds in exchange for infielder Mark Koenig and pitcher Allyn Stout.

"Now we're all set," said Bill. Koenig can play anywhere in the field and he's a good hitter. He'll make a great relief man. Stout is just the man I need for relief pitching. I made a mistake in trading Watkins for George Davis a year ago, but remedied that yesterday when I got Davis back from the Phillies in exchange for Joe Bowman and cash."

Bill said he had to move quickly or he would have been left out in the cold. He had another deal in mind which involved the Phillies, Pirates and Braves, but the Pirates couldn't make their part of it go with the Braves.

Kerr Replaces Aitkenhead in Net

New York, Dec. 14 (INS)—The New York Hockey Rangers announced today they had purchased Dave Kerr, auxiliary goalie of the Montreal Maroons. The amount was not divulged.

Kerr will replace Andy Aitkenhead, whose poor playing in the Ranger net has been deemed largely responsible for the team's slump this year. Kerr will play with the Rangers here Sunday against Boston.

Mr. Boston Says:—

Valenti Risks $15,000 Backing Boxing Show

Fuller Is Favorite

By Jack Conway

AROUND THE town with Mr. Boston . . . Rip Valenti of the Goodwin A. C. risking $15,000 in guarantees on his huge boxing show at the Garden on next Friday night for the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American . . . And confident the show will draw between $25,000 and $30,000.

The Goodwin A. C. management proved it had the interests of its fans at heart when it offered this tremendous attraction at popular prices of 55 cents to $3.30.

Also on the same card!

A tip. Get your reservations early at the downtown office of the Goodwin A. C., 250 Washington street or at the Garden.

Fuller Is Favorite

SAMMY FULLER is a favorite to win from Eddie Coal of Philadelphia in their 10-round bout at the New York Garden tonight. Coal is a fast, clever boxer, but in Fuller he will meet the best puncher of the lightweight division. Fuller is able to hit harder than most welterweights.

After tonight's bout Fuller will come to Boston to start training for his 10-round go with Bobby Pacho of California. Pacho gave Tarney Ross a bitter battle in their fussle for the world junior welterweight crown at Cleveland last Monday night.

IT WAS due to the splendid cooperation of Edward C. Foster, president of the National Boxing Association, that it was possible to match Maxie Rosenbloom and Tony Shucco for the Basket Fund show. Rosenbloom was under contract to box at St. Joseph's, Mo., on December 18, and it would have been impossible for him to make the necessary train connections to get here in time to box Shucco on December 17.

Foster was asked to help change the Missouri date. Through the good graces of Foster's office, the Missouri bout was set back until January 7.

The Shucco-Rosenbloom bout has been in the making for two years. It is one of the banner attractions of the ring, and would furnish a blistering battle. Rosenbloom is one of the best Jewish boxers, and says he will give Shucco a shellacking.

Milk Fund Dream Game Will Pair Pro Giants and All-Americas

By Bill Corum

New York, Dec. 14—Would you like to see Kostka and Lund of the mighty men of Minnesota, Shepherd of Western Maryland and Howell of Alabama hurl themselves at the forward wall of the New York Giants in the football game of the century next fall?

Well if you would, you are going to have the opportunity.

Tim Mara, owner of the Giants, monarchs of all they survey on the gridiron, today broadcast a challenge to any football team in the world to play his boys next fall in a charity game for the benefit of Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's Milk Fund.

"Tell them to write their own ticket," said Mara. "Tell them to pick their own coaches, their own teams of All-America All-Stars, and their own date, so long as it does not conflict with our league schedule, and then just let us know in time to be there."

This was Tim's reply to the stories that his young hired men do not tackle, do not block, do not have what is known as the old college spirit; do not, in short, play the best football that was ever played.

"I've grown a little weary of these stories about what a great college team would do to us," Mara said, "and I shall realize that it is impossible for us to play Minnesota or Stanford or Alabama or Pittsburgh or Dr. Crisler's team, as they were constituted, let them take their pick of the All-American from these teams, and the country, and then name their date.

KSS LIKE PROS

"I realize," continued the usually bland and smiling owner of the champions, "that these are only college boys. So are the boys on my team.

"What do they change, except maybe some writer's viewpoint, when they take off the uniforms of dear old Siwash and put on those of the Giants?

"Nothing that I can see, and I have talked to many of them, both before and after they became professional players. Not that I looked them up. They looked me up.

"It is quite true that I pay the boys who play football for me. Also true that I pay them as well as I can. And equally true that my agreements with them are strictly open and above board.

"There is not the slightest secrecy about my arrangements with my players, or why I have made arrangements with them. I am trying to make some money out of football. No more they."

"Now it may be true after I have hired these gentlemen of the various colleges at what they apparently feel is a fair salary, that they go out and play haphazard and indifferent football for me. I don't think so.

"But I repeat that it may be true. If it is, I want to know it, I think I am entitled to know, if I am the one most vitally concerned.

* * *

"So make any arrangements the All-Americas think fair. Let them, or the fans, name the coaches and the players—as many of both as they like—and let them practice as long as they like.

* * *

"All the Giants want to know is what New York playing field they will be on and no what date and hour next September.

* * *

"Unless, as I say, it conflicts with our league schedule we'll be there—and, may I add in behalf of my boys, with bells on."

ASSEMBLED EARLY

Tim Mara knows, as does the writer, that such a game has been tried twice before.

The first was pulled on the Pacific Coast in the days when professional football was strictly catch-as-catch-can and the dead-take-the-pocket-stake who is-the-quarterback-ball. Those days are gone forever.

And the last time the game was played to an unsatisfactory conclusion before some 50,000 persons at Soldier Field, Chicago. I say an unsatisfactory conclusion because it wound up in a scoreless tie on a hot night that was made for Cincinnati baseball.

There were two factors that kept the Giants from being all it might have been.

The fact that the champion Chicago Bears were inclined to look on it as the evening's workout in public, and the additional fact that the all-American all-stars hardly had time to bone up on the finer points of the fellow playing next them, much less assimilate any idea of team play.

The collegians can be assembled early enough to give their coaches—whoever they may be and how ever many—an opportunity to shape them into a team.

Also players are more different from their rivals, the Giants, except that the Giants will be professionals. What difference—if any—that makes, this game should prove.

The Chicago affair was a tremendous show, filled with sound and fury, but proved nothing.

The warm weather, the newness of the idea, the complacency of the professional players, many things, combined to make it inconclusive. Whereas our idea is to make it as conclusive as possible.

Will start an earlier vote on the coaches and players, and allow them a longer time in which to sharpen their condition and teamwork.

THE 'DREAM GAME'

At that season of the year, we should also have slightly cooler weather than we have in September.

In other words our idea is to let the college stars name their weapons as far as possible.

Sure! Let them permit their conferences to be their guides. Our only idea is to make this the fairest possible test between college and professional football as played in these United States in the years of 1934 and 1935.

In the above we have quoted Mr. Mara's ideas at some length without balancing them with the reply of some college football enthusiast. Our only excuse for this is that we had been talking to Mara, and not to a college cohort.

Our own position is, and will, of course, be strictly neutral. Once we get the teams on the field at the peak of their form we won't care which wins.

Our only idea is that this is the dream football game—and has been the dream game for many years—and that we like to see dreams come true.

MARTIN PAIRED WITH RUSSELL

"Rebel" Rob Russell against "Bull" Martin!

Alex MacLean has signed this pair for one of the two best gates to meet in the semi-final to the Rob "Bibber" McCoy-Count Zarynoff bout for the heavyweight wrestling championships of New England at the Arena on next Wednesday night.

Russell and Martin are two of the roughest men ever to appear on local mats. They give action at all times. Their tussle next Wednesday night should be something to write home about.

Maloy and Zarynoff have gone into intensive training for their championship skirmish. The Count is faster than McCoy and will have plenty of backing when he enters the ring.

O'Brien Takes Cue Title

Crandall's defeat put him in the select circle with Edward Jackson of New Bedford. They will play it off tonight.

The fifth place tie between Swede Carlson and Johnny Mills also will be played off tonight.

Collier's Names All-America Team

New York, Dec. 14—Selections for Collier's All-America football team, which is a perpetuation of the original All-America founded by Walter Camp 50 years ago, were announced today.

The players chosen are:

Ends—Hutson, Alabama; Larson, Minnesota.

Guards—Barclay, N. Carolina; Bevan, Minnesota.

Center—Shotwell, Pittsburgh.

Halfbacks—Wallace, Rice; Borries, Navy.

Fullback—Lund, Minnesota.

N. U. Assured Fine Season on Track

Coach Joe Zeller, husky track mentor, was assured of a strong track team for the coming season by the results of the recent two-day track meet.

Zeller learned among other things that:

1. Captain Roger Hadley, New England discus champ, will also be a contender for weight honors. Hadley broke the N. U. mark by heaving the 35-pound weight 45 feet 10½ inches.

2. Everett Eldridge will score many points for Northeastern in the running events. Member of the crack relay quartet, Eldridge copped the 300 and 600-yard runs. He also placed second in the 35-yard dash.

3. Jim Sandler, New England intercollegiate high jump record holder, is primed for action. Sandler easily won the running high jump handicap.

Brown Nine Books 18-Game Program

Providence, R. I., Dec. 14—Eighteen games in all will be played by the Brown varsity baseball team, Dr. Frederick W. Marvel, director of Athletics, announced today.

Games are listed with Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth, Holy Cross and Colgate, among others, in a schedule that opens with Northeastern April 10 and closes with Holy Cross here June 15.

This Ear—

—That Air

By N. F. T.

One week ago today, as the crow flies and as per calendar count, it comes to mind that a well intentioned promise was made here to publish the colyum selection for an "All America Radio Eleven," much in the manner that sport scribes pick a 1934 pigskin aggregation that in various all-around ways deserve designation as representative of the best in the game. It's all a matter of opinion, to be sure.

Nevertheless, opinions have been known to be worth something. Ask any Congressman who disagrees with President Roosevelt rather obdurately and often. How well a number of them know! On the other hand, loudspeakers, patrons and readers of this sound sanctum realm reflection from day to day, have the privilege of disagreeing to their hearts' content. It is but an opinion, as stated, based on a goodly lot of listening through the year now coming to a close a mile-a-minute, or so it seems. In any event, the nominations are as follows, look 'em over.

DIALECT—Harry (Nick Parkyakakas) Einstein, featured with Eddie Cantor all the year and due to return with Eddie early in 1935.

DIALOGUE — The smiles and sighs of "Amos 'n' Andy" still going strong six nights per week in the WBZ-WBZA schedules at 7 p. m.

CLASSIC TENOR—John McCormack, starred in two 1934 series and contracted for another.

POPULAR TENOR — Morton Downey, on the air irregularly, but beginning a brand of twice-weekly turn as of next Sunday afternoon on WBZ.

ANNOUNCING—Don Wilson, of the NBC staff, assigned to both WEEI and WBZ programs.

FEMININE SONGSTRESS—For both popular and classic compositions. Helen Jepson, soloing weekly the "Stoopnagle and Bud" program every Sunday night across WNAC channels.

There they are. Not by any means an easy task to tackle either. However, they are set forth strictly as personal favorites over the vast air army of talented artists that make up our week to week audible entertainment.

COME-BACK COMING?

It will be interesting to note how the fans hook up among subscribers as well as studio staff folk in Boston who urgently requested, by letter and otherwise, that such a choice be put down in print.

ABOUT FACES

by ART MOGER

NOW PLAYING AT THE FINE ARTS THEATRE

Would you like to spend the winter season in Cairo?

How? Just "list the worldly famous Fine Arts Theater today, where the feature picture is "Season in Cairo," starring two of the above "About Faces" characters. These stars are two of the most popular international screen celebrities. One will be remembered for his film success with Lilian Harvey in "Congress Dances." The feminine lead is portrayed by a European miss who played the leading role in "The Private Secretary" and "Son of the White Mountains."

Manager George Kraska of the Fine Arts Theater offers the following short subjects to complete a splendid all-around bill, "Etcher's Art," the first in the Fine Arts series of short screen subjects; a cartoon comedy, and "City of Wax," second in the zoology series.

To complete today's "About Faces" series by Art Moger, fill in the number of squares beneath the drawings of each screen celebrity. Use the letters "I" and "U" as guides to correct identifications. The squares equal the number of letters in their names. Mail your ENTIRE week's solutions to the "About Faces Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.

The successful contestants will share in the weekly $25 in cash awards as offered by the Boston Evening American. You, too, can win either: First prize, $5; second prize, $3; third prize, $2; or 15 prizes of a brand new one dollar bill each.

Names of last week's "About Faces" winners will be announced tomorrow's Boston Evening American!

BRIDGE LEAGUE BROADCAST ON AIR WAVES TONIGHT

An array of big-time bridge players have their radio inning tonight (WEEI), between 7:15 and 7:30 p. m. Enthusiasts over the great indoor pastime may wish to get some pointers; therefore, in many circles the above pasteboard dealing experts will find that they shall not pass—such punning.

Winners in the final session of the eighth annual Fall tournament of the American Bridge League, have in mind to tell what brand of play is required to win champ ships. Howard Schenken, considered as outstanding player of 1934, and David Burnstine, holder of the outstanding player of all time title, are to be introduced. It all takes place down New York way.

BUSY BROADCASTER

James Melton, the popular "mike" tenor who takes many turns on the network schedules, assumes another airing for himself when he joins the "Intimate Revue Hour" setting (WBZ) with Al Goodman's orchestra, come 8:30 this evening. Dwight Fiske, the favorite Park Avenue master of ceremonies, likewise takes part in the program.

Sally Eilers and Lee Tracy are the two screen star personalities in the "Hollywood Hotel" sixty-minute spotlight tonight (WNAC) along with Louella Parsons, the film critic, debonair Dick Powell and Ted Fio Rito's orchestra.

Amateurs all over everywhere are having a high old time tonight. That doesn't mean aspiring singers and ambitious instrumentalists, rather the operators who maintain their own stations as affiliates of the American Radio Relay League. They plan sort of a nationwide spelling bee among themselves, the animation being in the form of special messages from every section of the country, transmitted by means of code signals. These calls consist of the weirdest combination of letters imaginable, yet the amateurs understand them. At least that's what the exchanges of greeting is all about tonight, to see if they do interpret things accurately. Headquarters of the League is in Hartford, Ct., although the entire United States will participate in the above activity.

SCENE OF SCRAP

That boxing bout involving Sammy Fuller and Eddie Coal, which will take place in New York's spacious Madison Square Garden, goes out over the air this evening from ringside, to be heard in these parts (WAAB) between 9:15 and 11 p. m.

MYSTERY STILL UNSOLVED

ever found to point to her movements from the moment she stepped from her room. That was the start and the end of the trail.

Troopers combed the Hampshire hills for weeks. Rivers and ponds were dragged, buildings by the score were searched.

Murder, suicide, kidnaping, voluntary disappearance? The investigation turned up no strong motive for any one. Suicide and voluntary disappearance were the theories given greatest attention.

Thomas F. Sterling, senior at Amherst College, was questioned. He was her close friend; his father was on intimate of Alice Corbett's mother. Sterling revealed a letter from her which indicated she might be contemplating suicide . . .

"Love and common sense are the only things worth living for. I've got to die. I cannot go on living. . . ."

This girl, whose mother was a strict Methodist and missionary worker, had become an atheist; at least she had shown tendencies toward disbelief in God. She had begun a philosophical dissection of her own character and was mentally depressed by her findings. It is a stage through which most college students pass but few are driven by it to self-destruction.

Radio was first widely used in this search. A $500 reward was offered. As in all such cases, the missing person was "seen" in a thousand places. She was actually "found" in Troy, N. Y., working as a domestic; but it wasn't she.

In New York, a year ago, a Hadley ne'er-do-well, on a spree, went to police and confessed slaying Miss Corbett and throwing her into the Connecticut river. He sobered up, recanted his tale, and it was disproved.

Still, it is not illogical that what he falsely claimed to have done, somebody did do. The general belief, however, is that while Alice Corbett is dead, she died by her own hand, probably in that same river where, two years later, another Smith girl, Francis St. John Smith, took her own life.

Burglar Flees as Girl Awakens

Surprised by a girl whom he awakened at 3 a. m. today, a burglar escaped from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dunne at 22 Oakland street, Brookline, with a man's overcoat and three girls' fur coats, valued at $340.

Mrs. Dunne told police that the intruder awakened Betty Howell, a student in the Bouve-Boston School of Physical Education, one of her lodgers. The girl screamed and awoke Mr. and Mrs. Dunne just in time for them to see the man flee.

13 Brings Fame to Young Radio Star

Helen Young, the talented Jill of the Sears, Roebuck program, "Bab-O and Toyland," finds thirteen anything but an unlucky number.

During this year, the thirteenth in her brief existence, she has won acclaim from critics and public alike for her stage and radio vocal broadcasting. And now the supreme tribute for a songbird, has been accorded her. A song has been especially written for her, entitled "I Want to Go to Toyland," and she will sing it tonight and tomorrow night over Station WNAC, at 5:45 p. m.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1934

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION BY MORE THAN 80,000

More State Police and Federal Supervision Needed to Check Crime

IT IS time to call a halt.

Yet the theater bombings that prompted Governor Ely to proclaim a state war on terrorists add only a few new figures to the long column of daily outrages of violence in Massachusetts.

The Governor's appeal to the people in this instance falls short in one particular. It fails to embrace the widely recognized need for the aid of the United States government—indeed, the supervision of the Federal government—in any united effort now attempted to cut out the cancerous growth of organized crime and racketeering.

The municipal police of this Commonwealth, with mighty few exceptions, have efficiently demonstrated their inefficiency in their efforts to combat crime.

New Bedford and Fall River were scenes of theater bombings two years ago. For those crimes there were never any arrests and convictions which would have served as warning to terrorists to stand clear of Massachusetts, and as assurance to the public that such outrages would not be repeated.

Now they have been repeated; and the public lives in fear that they will be repeated again.

Massachusetts has a staggering list of unsolved major crimes. The majority of them grew out of well-organized lawlessness of one type or another.

BURGLARY is on the increase. Racketeering of every kind has become so general, and so widely condoned or unpunished, that only by such resultant flarings of beastly violence as the bombings Wednesday is the public—nay, even the Governor—aroused to an appreciation of an organized underworld that is threatening slowly to overwhelm the very structure of the state and nation.

Every crime that goes unpunished spawns new crime. Where the bars of legal enforcement have been lowered in the slightest to lawlessness, more crime of a worse type has followed in.

The Massachusetts public is existing from day to day in a condition of shock resulting from continued, increasing, unsolved crime of all kinds.

The extent to which corrupt public officials have nurtured the growth of organized crime here, by condoning it in its forms of lesser violence, is not easily estimated. Obviously, it is not as great as in some other states; just as obviously, it is considerable.

The efficiency of the few really good departments is gravely handicapped, in some instances almost completely nullified, by the inefficiency of others. There is, and can be, no co-ordination between them.

Governor Ely sent to the Legislature last year a commendable bill calling for unification of the major police departments in co-ordination with the state constabulary, which is an excellent but all-too-small organization. This bill would have removed police as far as possible from political pressure, and it would have made possible a unified, purposeful state war on crime. Politics defeated it.

NOW, if there is to be any success from crime, the United States government must increase its Secret Service—which owes no allegiance to politics or racketmen—come into Massachusetts and take over supervision of criminal law enforcement.

A plan to enlarge the state police force and co-ordinate it with an enlarged Federal supervisory unit here can easily be worked out.

The public should demand it, and require the Legislature to memorialize President Roosevelt and Congress in favor of it. It is the only hop

For Port of Boston

Fitzgerald Always Booster

Efforts to stimulate interest in the Port of Boston have become the chosen work of a few civic-minded patriots who do not know the meaning of defeat.

They carry on despite the lack of interest displayed in the economic value of the unsurpassed facilities of Boston harbor to shippers.

As John F. Fitzgerald told the Foreign Commerce Club there is a prodigious work before those who would stimulate interest in Boston shipping.

The barriers to more business for the Port of Boston are artificial and must be torn down. This can only be done by a concerted drive to boost the Port by shippers and industrialists alike.

The burden cannot be carried by a few forever. Their efforts must soon be bulwarked by the support of loyal citizens who realize that a prosperous Port means a more prosperous Commonwealth.

Business Goes Ahead

When Let Alone

American business refuses to be outdistanced by foreigners—as long as it has American science to help it.

Germany and Italy, seeking to keep out American cotton, have developed new fabrics made out of wood pulp.

America, needing to compete with these fabrics, has now found what Francis P. Garvan, president of The Chemical Foundation, considers a revolutionary method of making artificial fabrics out of slash pine which is plentiful in the South.

If the Government will leave business alone, it will create all sorts of new industrial means of keeping the factories working and making more jobs for more workers.

It's Pickpocket Season

Keep a Grip on Your Purse

If when you're out shopping, someone shoves or jostles you, don't get too annoyed or indignant.

Superintendent Martin H. King of the Boston Police Department warns:

"Don't leave pocketbooks, bags or bundles on store counters out of your sight. While on the street or elsewhere, keep bags securely in hand or under arm."

If someone is effusively nice or friendly, also keep your fist tightly on your money.

A Merry Christmas

Help Others to Have One

In the early days of the church boxes were placed to receive coins. These were opened and distributed among promiscuous charities on Christmas Day.

If you wish to help this year, send your donation to the Boston Evening American's Basket Fund Editor, 294 Devonshire street, Boston.

Every cent contributed will go toward making some poor family's Christmas merry.

Change for Better

More Banks Wanted

Growing interest in branch banking reported in New Hampshire strongly suggests that conditions in the Granite State have changed for the better.

When bankers turn their thoughts to expansion and more accessible facilities for business there must be a demand from increased trade.

The Handwriting on the Wall

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

TRUTH ABOUT CAPITALISM

I'm getting sick of these yawps about capitalism. They remind me of the way we kids used to work ourselves up, of a stormy night, over the Boogie Man.

We knew, of course, even at five, that there wasn't any Boogie Man. But when the night shut down like a great, black hat, and the wind began to screech, and the rain hit the old tin gutter with a gurgling moan . . . we'd crowd around the kitchen stove and start to talk.

Elsie Robinson

Then somebody says—"Here comes the Boogie Man;" And we'd laugh. What did we care about a Boogie Man—with the kettle sputtering and the lamp glowing and tangy red apples heaped high in the bowl?

But then Phil would describe the Funny Thing he saw in the dark place under the bridge. And Winnie would tell about the sound she heard on the road to the graveyard.

ALL SCARED PINK

And then—before you could say SCAT—the gooseflesh would be rising! And our teeth would be chattering! AND WE'D ALL BE SCARED PINK!

Young idiots! But here we are now, a whole nation of us, doing exactly the same thing. Scaring ourselves into fits over a Big Bad Name!

CAPITALISM. Cut out the shudders and let's use sense. What does Capitalism mean in America? Never mind what it means in Europe. What does it mean to US—what has it meant in OUR history? It has MADE our history. Getting capital using capital is as natural a gesture for an American as chewing garlic or tearing his hair is for an Italian or a Frenchman. WE'RE GEARED THAT WAY.

Capitalism isn't an abnormal, artificial habit—a degenerate disease. It's a natural impulse. It's as natural for a man to want to save a little cash as for a squirrel to save nuts. And it's likewise perfectly natural for some of us to be better nutsavers than others.

Everybody born free and equal? Don't kid yourself. Nor can you by any political device make them that way.

We go capitalistic in our cradles. Little Billie swapping his glass marble for little Jimmy's wad of gum is a capitalist. Young Al, saving his pennies to buy a paper route—or a dozen acres of meadow land—is a capitalist.

BUT DOES THAT IMPLY THAT MONEYMAKERS ARE "RUTHLESS EXPLOITERS OF HUMAN FLESH . . . BLOOD SUCKERS . . . MONEY MONSTERS"? It certainly does not. And we'd never have imagined that it did if a bunch of foreign screwballs hadn't chiseled in on our fireside group and given us all the jitters with their Big Bad Boogie Man blather.

CAPITALIST . . . SOCIALIST. Simple, sane terms. We've lived with them, practiced both of them since this country first started. But now, because the night's blacker than usual and some body's screeching "Boogie Man," we've gone all in a dither. But a Capitalist is only a fellow who HAS.

And a Socialist is a fellow who SHARES. And every decent American is both to a certain degree—and wishes he could be more so.

Communism? I'd like to see it hit us just one week, and then LISTEN TO THE BELLOWING. As a matter of fact, there's no such thing as actual communism or socialism ANYWHERE. There's a theoretical set-up in Russia, BUT IF ANY AMERICAN EMPLOYER PUT HIS EMPLOYES ON THE SPOT AS MR. STALIN IS PUTTING HIS "COMRADES," THE HIGHWAY WOULD BE LITTERED WITH MANGLED MILLIONAIRES WITHIN 24 HOURS.

Capitalism? It isn't Capital that gets your goat, partner. It's our own lack of it! And if you think Communism is the answer—just try and take his gum away from little Jimmy!

The Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

Husbands—and Other Problems

Helen Rowland

A woman may not wish her newly-divorced husband to suffer, says Reno Ruth, but still it hurts her vanity to see him gazing TOO happily and self complacently into another woman's eyes.

A girl may spend more money on Christmas gifts than did her mother, who made them by hand—but think what a lot she saves on mistletoe in these days when a kiss is its own excuse!

The honeymoon is not over until the bride lets the moths get into her husband's evening clothes, because backing him into a dinner coat is such a struggle that she doesn't care what happens to them.

Nowadays, a girl seems to imagine that a man must ammble her kisses before he can discover whether or not he wants a lifeinterest in them. But, even at a food show, one can get awfully fed-up on "samples."

Many a man feels that, if a girl is good to look at, she needn't know anything in order to make a satisfactory wife. He won't listen to her much, anyhow.

Never try to cheer your husband up with the thought that Christmas is coming. Most men have long since forgotten the real significance of the day and ask only to be allowed to eat and drink themselves into a coma until the torture and the shouting are all over.

A man can "take it on the chin" when a woman reproaches him for something he has done; but it drives him to rebellion to have her bawl him out for something she merely suspects that he's GOING to do.

A man never realizes how weak he is, until he decides to "give up" a woman who is determined to GET him.

Stars and Stripes

France decides she won't pay us what she owes us Dec. 15. And when France says she won't pay, she always keeps her word.

Seems that after we recognized Russia, she practically forgot what we looked like.

Why doesn't somebody pick an "All-American" American?

Some men are so incredulous they won't believe anything unless they see it in the first page of a ten-dollar bill.

Those 46 Americans who had incomes of more than a million dollars last year are to be pitied. Happiness flies out the window when the tax collector comes in the door.

Observation that the new Speaker of the House will be in a position to make his own record can't be disputed. That's true of every Speaker.

Wouldn't it be funny if some of those protesting new filling stations along our highways ran out of "gas" where they'd stopped a station from operating?

We won't hear much about nudist colonies in New England till warm weather comes again.

WRITES ABOUT

Stupid Regulations

Hendrik VanLoon

One night I was listening to Alexander Woollcott. You know how it is when you are sick. You can't sit, you can't read, you can't write, you can't even talk, and so out of sheer despair you turn to the radio.

Well, generally speaking, it is pretty bad. At times it becomes incredibly bad. It is funny that I, who would dearly love to write of the good things of this earth, so often feel obliged to do a bit of calamity howling.

I think that I know the reason. The good things of this earth are still all of them there, but then came that mysterious revolution, which turned the whole world upside down.

As a result some who used to do the shoe-shining in the basement are now the occupants of the executive chambers, while others, who used to sit in the seats of the mighty, are now doing the shoe-shining in the basement.

CHANGE IN MANNERS

All this has brought about a complete change in our taste and our manners.

When I said, therefore, that much of the stuff coming over the radio was third rate trash, I meant third rate trash and just that; badly modulated voices, the wrong pronunciation, fourth and fifth rate orchestras.

And then once in a while, something as sublime as that concert of the Philadelphia Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra last Saturday, when they played Tristan and Isolde in such a way that I wonder that old Richard Wagner didn't return from his grave to listen in and hear how the thing should be done.

But too often it is just the regular commercial hash which all of us know by heart. Therefore a body is mighty grateful when one single evening brings two well-modulated and civilized voices, those of Mrs. Roosevelt and Alexander Woollcott.

Afterwards I was, however, sorry that I had listened to Woollcott, for I told one of those things that are so hopelessly stupid, so unforgivably stupid, that involuntarily it makes you want to go out and hit somebody on the schnozzle.

As all people, but not all corporations, now seem to know, there exists a tribe of dogs in this world which have been trained to act for those who are blind.

Now it so happens that in America we still have a large number of organizations which do not allow dogs on the premises.

When they force small puppies to travel alone in baggage cars, it shows a supreme lack of all understanding of animal psychology (which is very different from human psychology).

Now what Woollcott told, and what seemed so unbelievable that it must be true (because he never could have invented it), is the fact that there are still a number of railroads and a number of restaurants and a number of hotels and office buildings which will not allow a blind man to bring his dog inside their doors.

But what makes this so absolutely hopeless is the fact that such regulations are not the result of out-and-out cruelty, but of sheer stupidity, of lack of vision and awareness. And it is that sort of dumbness that a thousand-fold repented is responsible for most of the discomforts of the present world.

Human Side of the News

Nudists Seek Secluded Spot

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

The Doukhobors, Canada's Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, is abandoning its corporate charter and looking for a spot where it won't be bothered by clothes and taxes.

The Doukhobors, 200-year-old Russian sect, built up a $20,000,000 property in farms, canneries and textiles, but they just couldn't keep their shirts on.

They kept the mounted police on the run, routing nude parades of bewhiskered farmers and their families, when the "mounties" should have been out "getting their man," in the established Oliver Curwood tradition.

"Very few clothes and a very red nose—that's all right in the summer-time."

So ran the old London music hall song, but the Doukhobors did a Sally Rand right out on the Canadian snow, parading in the nude on the slightest provocation—through a blizzard, if they felt like it.

No one ever got it quite straight, as to the reason for all this, but it seems to have been partly a phase of their religious belief and partly a means of sabotaging the tax collector.

When their colony was established in 1908, they insisted they would pay no taxes for war. They also said they would school their own young and they objected to school taxes. Taxes and clothes, two considerable items of latter-day overhead, caused most of the trouble.

Big, shaggy old Peter Verigen I, leading their hegira from Russia, was their king. He was a benevolent but firm monarch, a shrewd business man, building their industries and farms into a prosperous little empire, dealing shrewdly with the outside world. But, about 15 years ago, there was mounting discord and trouble.

The Canadian government jerked back 360,000 of the fertile acres it had given them. Orchards and farms had been developed, but the government insisted that the colonists had violated their corporate charter.

This writer has been unable to learn much of the origins and inducements to nudity in the world of the early Doukhobors. In the middle of the Eighteenth century, there was a nudist cult at Amsterdam, which lured quite a few respectable burghers, who served jail sentences and went back to clothes. A nudist sect in Wales was similarly suppressed.

Before the advent of the Nazis, Germany's nudist population was said to be about 500,000. The Fuehrer had discouraged them considerably, but the cult hangs on.

Soviet Russia had quite a battle to make people wear clothes in the first few years of the Bolshevist regime, but, aside from that they wear them or not, as they please in the country and at the beaches. That, however, is nothing new in Russia.

In this country there are strong nudist movements in seventeen states, with middle-aged, flat-chested Tarzans bent on getting back to nature. French police are kept on the jump by a nudist island in the Seine.
